Attend Baptist Meeting

The Rev. James Hackney, pastor of the First Baptist Church will be one of the presiding officers at sessions of the annual state-wide evangelistic conference in Raytown, Mo. Jan. 11-13 of the Missouri Baptist Association.

Other Baptist clergymen attending from this area include the Rev. B. G. Corn, Sikeston; the Rev C. E. Roberson, Miner; the Rev. Norman Shepard, Route 1, Bertrand; the Rev. Jimmy Edmondson, Blodgett; the Rev. H. G. Rhea, Route 1, Charleston; the Rev. Richard Lance, Wyatt and the Rev. Edward Marshall, Commerce.

The six-session conference begins Monday afternoon, January 11, at 2:30 p.m. All sessions will be held at the First Baptist Church here, Dr. Arthur H. Stainback is the pastor.

The conference program will be under the direction of Dr. Eugene T. Pratt, Jefferson City, newly elected director of evangelism for the Missouri Baptist Convention. Dr. Pratt, former associate professor of evangelism at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Ft. Worth, Texas, will take over his new duties at this conference.

The meeting will initiate the Convention's accelerated program of evangelism and will be attended by pastors, music directors and laymen from every part of the state. The conference will close at noon on January 13.

Legislature Gets 97 Bills Opening Day

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's Legislature gave itself a running start Thursday on its first day for introduction of bills.

In the House, members tossed in 78 bills and seven proposed constitutional amendments. In the Senate, there were 19 bills and two proposed changes in the constitution.

They ranged all the way from suggestions to solve the state's thorniest problem—legislative reapportionment — to the popular field of increasing welfare payments and boosting salaries of public officials.

One reapportionment proposal would provide for 170 House members, five from each state senatorial district.

Another would set up House districts ranging in population from 27,000 to 33,000. And a third would give each county at least one representative and base additional districts on a complicated formula.

The Senate received a public accommodations bill and the House got bills to:

Set up a conflicts of interest law barring public officials from enjoying private gain because of their positions and also requiring lobbyists to report their activities.

Boost state aid to public schools by an estimated $24.5 million.

Extend school bus transportation to kindergarten youngsters and increase the state aid for transportation.

Require labeling of imported meats.

Set up a Missouri water development fund to finance the storage of water in new federal impoundments for industrial or community use.

RETIRING as superintendent of Big Oak State Park, Narvel Johnson, right, is shown with his wife, and who will retire as of today. He and his wife have spent 18 years at the park, located 12 miles south of East Prairie. The couple will take a long vacation, after which they will return to East Prairie to make their home.

Superintendent at Big Oak State Park Lake Retiring

Two familiar faces at Big Oak State Park, 12 miles south of East Prairie, will no longer greet visitors at the park after today, as Supt. Narvel Johnson, will be retired due to his age, and will be replaced by his brother, Cletus Johnson, East Prairie.

The retiring park superintendent and his wife have been in charge of the park for the past 18 years, and have played an important part in its development. The 1,007-acre park, which was named after tha largest oak tree in the world, one of 13 champions for size known. The champion oak was 334 years old, 143 feet high and 21 feet, four inches in circumference, and contained almost 6,000 feet of lumber. It was felled in 1957 after it was struck by lightning twice. Still living and still the largest tree known is another oak, well over 122 feet high and 17 feet, four inches in circumference.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will leave within a few days for a visit with their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Pepper, Phoenix, Ariz., where they will remain for the rest of the winter. Next spring they will return to East Prairie to make their home. They have another daughter, Mrs. Faustine Hartley, in East Prairie.

The Johnsons took over their duties on Nov. 15, 1946, and built a small home at one edge of the 80-acre forest of giants. This park will never be without a giant, as dozens of large trees are several hundred years old, and will be a mecca for visitors from all over the nation, second only to the giant Redwoods in California.

It must be said the Big Oak Park has climbed greatly in attendance in the past two years, when a 23-acre lake was added, to swell the attendance to more than 50,000 persons last year. The lake was opened July 1, 1963, and more than 3,000 persons were at the lake on the opening day.

Ten Arrested by City Police, one On Four Charges

The city police made ten arrests in the past twenty-four hours. Five of the arrests were for not having city stickers.

Amos Denton, Lee avenue, charged with failure to display city sticker, and given summons to appear in court.

E. M. Schaefer, 1810 Oklahoma, charged with failure to display city sticker, summoned to appear in court.

Francis R. Jenkins, 131 Sixth street, charged with allowing his dog to run loose, and summoned to appear in court.

Dallas Palmer, 810 E. Kathleen, charged with failure to yield right-of-way and involved in an accident, was given summons to appear in court.

Barbara Stinnett, route two, Sikeston, charged with failure to yield right-of-way, and involved in an accident, was given summons to appear in court.

Barbara Stanfield, Sikeston, charged with auto theft, was turned over to Scott County authorities.

Leonard Stanfield, Bernie, charged with drunkenness, was turned over to Scott count authorities.

Charter New Club Of Lions

ORAN-- In a charter night ceremony, more than 150 Lions Club members and their wives were present Thursday night, to welcome the newly formed Oran Lions Club into the 26-D district of Lions International. The new club was sponsored by the Sikeston Lions Club, and the principal speaker was Judge Marshall Craig, past president of the Sikeston and Charleston clubs.

Present were members from clubs at Charleston, Poplar Bluff, Dexter, Bonne Terre, Arcadia Valley, Bell City, Advance, Cape Girardeau, Perryville, Piedmont and a few other cities in the district. Also present to welcome the new club was district governor Harvey P. Halter, Bonne Terre.

The program opened with a call to order by the new club president, Charles Wagoner, and pledge of allegiance led by club director W. G. Mason, and the singing of America led by Verlin Jackson. The invocation was given by Forrest Jackson.

Charles Mitchell, Sikeston Lion was master of ceremonies, and introduced the tail twisters, Haywood Snipes, Poplar Bluff; Hubert Koetting, Perryville, and C. L. Blanton, III, Sikeston. The tail twisters raised more than $100 in fines for the new club, and ranged from prize money to infractions of Lions Club rules, as well as auctioning off a monogrammed tie that brought $7.50. One member was fined a total of $11 for overstepping his authority during the evening.

Dinner music was provided by daughters of three of the Lions members, Misses Derra Goodman, Janice Laub and Lynn Ransdell. Greetings to the club was made by Oran mayor Dr. I. C. Mattingly, and introduction of guests by Edward C. Matthews.

The presentation of the charter was made by the district governor, Harvey Halter, Bonne Terre, and the presentation of a club banner by Charles Mitchell, Sikeston, the dinner bell by the sponsoring chairman Clem Beal, Sikeston, and the Lion money bank by Jim Moran, Charleston.

Speaker Marshall Craig pointed out the duties required by Lions International stating that "all new clubs depend on their own efforts and cannot stand on the accomplishments of other clubs. Both the organization and the individual must be informed and unselfish.

Mrs. Charles Wagoner, president of the Lioness club was introduced and presented her club's officers, and announced plans for their club in behalf of the new Lions Club in Oran.

Two Hurt In Truck Accident

Two East Prairie men were severely injured in a traffic accident Thursday, about 10:30 p.m. at the edge of Charleston on Highway 77.

According to the State Highway Patrol, Larry Burns, 20, of East Prairie driving a truck at a high rate of speed, lost control of the vehicle and it ran off the road. It hit and knocked down a utility pole and then hurtled several hundred feet further before stopping. Burns and a passenger, Paul Wilson, 18, of East Prairie, were thrown out of the truck and Wilson was pinned under it.

Wilson was admitted to the Missouri Delta community Hospital for treatment of a jaw broken in three places and a possible broken back; Burns was admitted for treatment of a possible broken leg, cuts and bruises.

This morning it was reported Burns was in satisfactory condition and Wilson in poor condition.

Troop E reports it had six traffic accidents Thursday no fatalities and three injured.

THREE BIKES STOLEN

Three boys bicycles were reported stolen in the past two days to the police.

TWO EMERGENCY CASES

Two persons were treated and dismissed from the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital Thursday. Steven Ray, East Prairie, fell and cut head and George Andres, Sikeston, steel shaft fell on toe.

Johnson To Seek Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson plans to put minimum wage and unemployment compensation legislation ahead of organized labor's pet project —repeal of the "right-to-work" section of federal law.

But, a high administration source says, repeal of section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act is still of "very real political and economic concern" to Johnson, even though he may not get around to proposing it until next spring.

Section 14B permits states to enact so-called "right-to-work laws that prohibit labor contracts from requiring compulsory union membership.

In his State of the Union message Monday night Johnson promised to ask Congress to repeal 14B. The next day some reports circulated on Capitol Hill that Johnson would not push hard for repeal in the next few months.

This caused some consternation in union circles.

It also has been learned on high authority that Johnson at the same time will seek another change in the Taft-Hartley Act desired by organized labor—especially in the construction trades.

This is the present ban on "situs" picketing which makes unions subject to secondary-boycott penalties when calling a strike at a construction site involving more than one employer.

Although he will not present a separate labor message to Congress, Johnson is considering a number of other changes in labor laws. But high sources indicated there is no change in the administration's opposition to cutting the federal standard work week from 40 to 35 hours — another prime aim of organized labor.

The administration believes it has the votes in Congress to change the two sections of Taft-Hartley without opening up the whole law to extensive revision under pressure of business interests.

Johnson is assigning top priority to bringing another estimated 2 million workers under the Fair Labor Standards Act, and improving the unemployment compensation program.

The first measure would bring hotel, restaurant, laundry and agricultural processing workers under the $1.25 minimum wage and other provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

There is also some consideration in high administration circles of requesting an increase in the $1.25 minimum wage, although probably not to the $2 figure advocated by the AFL-CIO.

THE MISSOURI DELTA Community Hospital will now have two thermatic drainage pumps to be used for emergency patients, a gift from the Sikeston Square and Compass Club.

The check for the purchase of these two items was presented to Harold Jones, hospital administrator and Bill Robison, purchasing agent for the hospital, by County Judge J. E. Childress, Thursday. The money for the new pumps was the proceeds from the annual fish and chicken barbecue of the Square and Compass club, which was under the chairmanship of Mayor Harry E. Dudley and secretary Paul Slinkard.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

* * *

The Union labor program for 1965 calls for the repeal of the section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act, which, if passed by Congress and signed by the President, would knock out the 20 state Right to Work laws now in effect. We reproduce below for your edification and education that which we are speaking about.

TEXT OF SECTION 14(b)

TAFT-HARTLEY ACT

Nothing in this Act shall be construed as authorizing the execution or application of agreements requiring membership in a labor organization as a condition of employment in any State or Territory in which such execution or application is prohibited by State or Territorial law.

The 20 state Right to Work laws now in effect all say essentially the same thing. About the only difference between them is that some devote more detail than other to defining the basic terms and to enforcement procedures. Here are the texts of typical Right to Work laws:

FLORIDA

(Amendment to Section XII of Florida Constitution, approved Nov. 7, 1944)

The right of persons to work shall not be denied or abridged on account of membership or non-membership in any labor union, or labor organization; provided, that this clause shall not be construed to deny or abridge the right of employees by and through a labor organization or labor union to bargain collectively with their employer.

KANSAS

(Amendment to Kansas Constitution, passed by referendum, Nov. 4, 1958)

Section 12. No person shall be denied the opportunity to obtain or retain employment because of membership or non-membership in any labor organization, nor shall the State, or any subdivision thereof or any individual, corporation, or any kind of association enter into any agreement, written or oral, which excludes any person from employment or continuation of employment because of membership or non-membership in any labor organization.

TEXAS

(Article 5207A, approved April 8, 1947, by Texas Legislature)

Section 1. The inherent right of a person to work and bargain freely with his employer, individually or collectively, for terms and conditions of his employment shall not be denied or infringed by law, or by any organization of whatever nature.

Section 2. No person shall be denied employment on account of membership or non-membership in a labor union.

Section 3. Any contract which requires or prescribes that employees or applicants for employment in order to work for an employer shall or shall not be or remain members of a labor union, shall be null and void and against public policy. The provisions of this Section shall not apply to any contract or contracts heretofore executed but shall apply to any renewal or extension of any existing contract and to any new agreement or contract executed after the effective date of this Act.

Section 4. Definitions. The term "labor union" as used in this Act shall mean every association, group, union, lodge, local, branch or subordinate organization of any union of working men, incorporated or unincorporated, organized and existing for the purpose of protecting themselves and improving their working conditions, wages, or employment relationships in any manner, but shall not include associations or organizations not commonly regarded as labor unions.

THE ARMY GOES HOME

The battle-hardened veterans of the Revolution were going home.

The small knots of men, in groups of three, five and ten, trudged in all directions. Wherever they went, the countryside gratefully opened its home to these returning warriors and gave them food and warmth.

In these hospitable shelters, the furloughed soldiers talked of April 19, 1783 as a day to go down in history. Hostilities formally ended that day, and General Washington had granted furloughs to most of his army the next day. Many of the soldiers guessed correctly that the furlough was in reality a full discharge, because the army would soon be disbanded.

As they relived the skirmishes of Lexington and Concord, and the battles of Monmouth, Saratoga, Yorktown and Breed's Hill (why was it being called the Battle of Bunker Hill when they had actually fought on Breed's Hill? It was a curious thing), they were warmed by the hearths of the houses which had been opened to them. But the hearths provoked a question of anguish for many: would their homes be patches of fire-blackened land and burned timber when they returned?

On December 4, 1783, General Washington also thought of home as he boarded a barge at the South Ferry in New York. He would go to Mt. Vernon, but only after trips to Philadelphia to detail his expenses, and to Annapolis to resign his command.

GENERAL WASHINGTON HURRIES TO MT. VERNON

Washington's expenses since the day he had taken command, $64,315, did not wholly reveal his dedication as a patriot. He also refused to accept pay for his personal services.

It was ironic that General Miffin, who had conspired to damage confidence in General Washington during the hopeless, cruel winter in Valley Forge, should say:

"You retire from the theatre of action with the blessings of your fellow-citizens, but the glory of your virtues will not terminate with your military command; it will continue to animate remotest ages."

Washington hurried to Mt. Vernon, his beautiful home on the Potomac. He was ready for the warmth of home life again, truly believing that he was through with public life. He expressed his yearnings with eloquence when he said:

"I have not only retired from all public employments, but I am retiring within myself, and shall be able to view the solitary walk and tread the paths of private life with heartfelt satisfaction. Envious of none, I am determined to be pleased with all; and this, my dear friend, being the order of my march, I will move gently down the stream of life until I sleep with my fathers."

NOW, IF I WERE COACH. . . .

In between our work, our extra-curricular activities and such distractions as politics, an election and constant international crises, quite a few of us found time this fall to attend a college football game or two.

And mind you, this was for college football only. It doesn't include the millions of other hardy souls who go to professional football games and keep right on going far into the winter in weather that would keep an Eskimo inside his igloo.

There is a simple lesson to be learned anew from this all-time high in gridiron popularity - five per cent greater than last year.

It is this: Give the people something they want, and they'll take it from there.

Football is action. It is drama. It is excitement and pageantry. It appeals to both sexes and to all ages. It is conflict without horror or tragedy. It is also excellent emotional therapy, during the game and after.

If our team wins, we feel wonderful. If it loses -- well, who can be happier in a melancholy way than a Monday morning quarterback replaying the game and giving the coach, the players and everyone within earshot the benefit of his thinking?

If football did nothing more than this, the contribution it would make to personal satisfaction would be invaluable.

ODD ITEMS: Good Influence - Many of today's youthful singers and groups are careless in their grooming, but the New Christy Minstrels certainly set a fine sartorial example for their young followers. They're the best-dressed singing group today . . .Sudden Thought - Styles Do Change - In fact, if a conformist wore the same clothing he wore just five years ago, he would be looked on as a non-conformist!. . .Hard On Clothes - "Mr. Frick," the rough - and- tumble comic skater starred in "Ice Follies," has ruined 250 pairs of pants since joining the company! . . . Historical - The "Blazer" originated when the captain of H.M.S. Blazer, to improve the appearance of his threadbare crew, equipped them with a metal-buttoned blue jacket . . . Big Switch - Members of the Seventh Avenue set, in New York, were once known as the flashiest dressers to be found anywhere. They were the nation's big users of white-on-white shirts and wild ties. But these days, they're among the most conservative dressers you will find!. . . New - For the man who entertains at home, there's a glass-front lighted sign that proclaims "BAR OPEN!"

Have you heard the latest in income tax proposals?

It's that people be paid NOT to pay income taxes!

Don't laugh. This may be for real. It's reported to be under consideration by a government tax force in Washington.

Here's how it would work.

Mr. Glomp makes $2,500 a year. He has a wife and four children.

He can, under the new proposal, forget about paying an income tax, since the plan sets up an automatic $3,000 tax exemption.

Mr. Glomp can do more than forget about paying an income tax. He can claim exemption of $600 for each member of his family.

Six times $600 equals $3,600.

On top of this, he also can claim a minimum standard deduction of $800.

A total exemption of $4,400.

But remember - Mr. Glomp has earned only $2,500 during the year. What about that?

Why, under the proposed plan the government would pay Mr. Glomp for not having earned as much income as the total of the exemptions he could have claimed had he earned enough to pay an income tax, which he hadn't.

It would pay him 15 per cent -- the 1965 rate for an equivalent amount of taxable income -- of the $1,900 difference between actual income and total exemption.

This would come to $285.

So Mr. Glomp would be handed a government check for $285 for not having had to pay any income tax.

Simple, eh?

You say such a plan is fantastic -- that it could never happen?

U.S. BEEF FOR EUROPE

A presidential mission recently reported to President Johnson that there is a potential market for U.S. beef in western Europe. And the wants of that market will be met -- if a campaign being conducted by the Foreign Agricultural Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the American Meat Institute attains the success which is anticipated.

Secretary of Agriculture Freeman has designated the Institute -- the national organization of the packers -- to carry on both long-range and short-term promotions to stimulate the commercial sale of beef and other meat products in western Europe and the United Kingdom. The project will be financed by the Institute and market development funds which are available to help develop new outlets for U.S. agricultural products. It will be concerned with the development of beef trade through normal commercial channels. No government sales or subsidies are planned or expected.

Beef trade between this country and Europe has been virtually nonexistent in recent years. The new campaign is designed to change that. The time, as Secretary Freeman says, is ripe. In his words, "Beef particularly is in short supply in Europe, prices have been rising, and prosperous consumers want more beef. We have the supplies to sell them . . ."

All concerned will gain from this -- the producers, who have been hard-pressed because of oversupply; the processors and distributors; and the European consumers who want more beef. It's the kind of cooperative activity that has universal good results.

FOOD - HOOKED

The bride in an effort to impress her husband, took special pains with her cooking. She took to flavoring her foods with generous portions of liquor. She would saturate her beef ragout with red wine, pour sherry all over the chicken and douse her cakes with rum. For a month the husband fairly gorged himself on this fare. Then one day he broke the news.

"Darling," he said, "I'm going on a diet. I've just joined Alcoholics Anonymous."

FROM THE MAIL BAG: "I'm confused about the amount of shirt collar which should appear above the coat collar in back. Some of the men I see on TV seem to be showing one and a half or two inches of collar above their coat." There are men like Dean Martin and Tony Curtis who do have their collars made that high, but it's an extreme style. The proper amount of collar to show is about one - half to three - quarters of an inch.

THE "SHAPED" SUIT: Here are the differences in the new models now being shown, as reported by the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear. The shoulders are slightly - squared, clean-cut but not exaggerated. Chest is fuller, more-masculine. The waistline is faintly traced. And the hips tapered. It's a flattering "look" for the man who wants to look trimmer than he is -- including possibly 60 to 70 per cent of the male populous.

CHEMICALS CLEAR BLOCKED SEWERS

Chemical compounds are available which clear sewers blocked with roots and other obstructions. The use of such a compound three or four times a year usually keeps sewers root-free. In more serious cases of ingrown roots, it is necessary to cut them out with professional equipment. Both chemical compounds and root cutting services are available from qualified plumbing contractors.

NOTHING NEW

Gas warfare dates back to 431 B. C., when suffocating gases were used in the war between Athens and Sparta, and similar means were employed in the Middle Ages. The first gas attack of World War I was launched by the Germans at Ypres, April, 1915, and resulted in severe Allied losses. Thereafter, gas was used by both sides in the war, but during World War II, none of the major warring powers used gas extensively.

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — I am about ready to plunge into the stock market.

Well, maybe not exactly plunge — but I am considering at least dabbling my toes in Wall Street. The trouble is, those toes are attached to the coldest feet this side of Alaska.

For years I've been reading educational articles dealing with the ins and outs of investing. But I'm afraid that when I'm in I'll wish I were out.

Still, I do think I'll crack open my nest egg just enough to purchase one share of stock. Then, on all those questionnaires, instead of admitting my occupation is "housewife," I can grandly write "financier."

If I ever get rich I'll owe my wealth to the wealth of knowledge I accumulate by reading the business pages of the newspapers every day.

My favorite literature is the advice service, which I find even more fascinating than the advice to the lovelorn columns.

The information dispensers, with a disdain for softening the blows equalled only by drama critics, never hesitate to give a forthright opinion on any stock asked about.

In horrified tones they urge an inquiring reader to get rid of his shares of Amalgamated Canine Catering Co., because it rapidly is going to the dogs.

On the other hand, they can make a questioner bask in the warmth of their approval if they like his choices.

I am still waiting for the soothsayers to come forth with the name of the stock I am looking for: one that sells for $20 a share, pays yearly dividends of $5 a month, and is guaranteed to double in value every other year.

Since this information has not yet appeared in print, my next best bet is to buy a share of American Telephone & Telegraph. Its future is secure as long as my daughter's voice holds out.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON -- Gaunt, gray Speaker John McCormack blinked a bit when 86 congressmen stood up on the floor of the House to demand a roll-call vote on seating the five Mississippi congressmen.

He started counting them carefully at first, then gave up and conceded there were enough standing to force the roll-call which most of the House didn't want.

Behind the surprise roll call was some backstage preparation which the Speaker didn't know about. There was also growing sentiment to bar Southern congressmen whose states do not permit Negro voting.

This has concerned many Southern congressmen. The final roll-call vote of 148 congressmen against seating the Mississippi delegation was over one-third of the House and much greater than expected. To some southerners it indicated that two years hence other southern states would also have trouble getting their representatives seated unless voting requirements are revised.

It was easy to see why most congressmen didn't want a roll-call vote. For it showed such avowed champions of Civil Rights as Manny Cellar of Brooklyn, author of the Civil Rights Bill, voting against the Negroes of Mississippi.

Other Brooklynite Civil-Rights advocates who voted to seat the Mississippi congressmen were Gene Keogh, friend of Dictator Franco; Abe Multer, friend of transit Czar Roy Chalk; Edna Kelly, John Rooney, Hugh Carey, and John M. Murphy. All voted in effect against the Civil Rights position which they have taken in the past, thereby demonstrating the alliance between big city machines and the conservative south when it comes to personal back scratching.

Another big city ally of Mississippi was Jim Delaney of Queens, the friend of Cardinal Spellman who for three years has worked with Mississippi's Bill Colmer inside the Rules Committee to block aid to education.

--BEHIND-THE-SCENES-
BY PLAY--

The backstage byplay which forced the Brooklynites and others to be counted actually began before Christmas when Rep. William Fitts Ryan of Manhattan got on the long-distance telephone to sixteen other congressmen and organized a small nucleus to oppose seating the Mississippians.

Next move came last Saturday, when Rep. John Blatnik, Minn., head of the Democratic Study Group urged other Democrats to attend a private Sunday meeting called by Ryan. Forty-five turned up for this meeting, and most of those present volunteered to line up others for the showdown next day.

Most active in rounding up other congressmen were Charles Vanik, Ohio; Edith Green, Ore., Jimmy Roosevelt, Don Edwards and Phillip Burton, Calif.; Joseph Resnick, the new congressman from FDR's home in Duchess County, N. Y.; Charles Diggs and John Conyers, Jr., Mich.; and Emilio Daddario, Conn.

Shortly before the vote, three Republicans, Ogden Reid and Seymour Halpern, N. Y., with Charles Mathias, Md., issued a joint statement opposing the seating of the Mississippians.

Meanwhile Ryan conferred with Democratic leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma who told him frankly that the full weight of the Johnson Administration leadership would be thrown against him and in favor of the Mississippians.

"The Speaker has asked me to introduce a motion to seat the Mississippi delegation, and as majority leader I'm going to do it," he said.

Knowing this was coming, Ryan had spent the previous evening studying the House rules, while Jimmy Roosevelt and Edith Green had coached several younger congressmen to ask questions from the floor which would educate the entire House on the fast-moving, complicated House procedure. Therefore when Albert moved to seat the Mississippi delegation, Ryan countermoved. Albert then moved a vote on the previous question. Ryan then countermoved with a demand for a roll-call vote on the previous question.

This was the backstage preparation which for the first time in one hundred years put more than one-third of the House on record against the seating of congressmen from a southern state because it denied voting rights to Negroes.

--MERRY-GO-ROUND--

President Johnson's speech writers were still frantically patching up his State of the Union Address up to noon on the day he delivered it. . .The suggestion that the President make his appearance before Congress at night, when more people could watch him on television, came from White House aide Bill Moyers. He stumbled upon the idea while he was thumbing through past State of the Union messages. He discovered one that had been delivered at 9 p.m. by FDR. . . Soundings in the south indicate that most school districts will go ahead with integration plans rather than forfeit their federal benefits under the new Civil Rights Act. Southern school boards figure the Supreme Court will force them to integrate sooner or later anyway, so they may as well comply with the new law before they lose any federal money. . .However, rumblings have been heard from a few school districts in Mississippi, Alabama, and Louisiana that they intend to make a last-ditch defiant stand. Some will give up federal aid rather than accept desegregation. . .Of the 2,225 school districts in the south, 600 have already proceeded with voluntary integration. . .The Fish and Wildlife Service has noted that many birds are settling down for the winter farther north than they usually remain. This could be the sign of a mild winter. . .The Internal Revenue Service is now granting tax depreciation, believe it or not, on air. An unpublicized ruling recognizes that garbage dump operators are entitled to tax depreciation on air space when they excavate for a dump.

Inside Labor

Four Chinese Communist Agents Operate Freely Inside U. S.

UNITED NATIONS: -- Diplomatic enemies of the U. S. have no difficulty contacting Communist China's agencies in New York -- nor in obtaining mainland Communist Chinese literature and printed propaganda for use at strategic moments.

There are at least three official Peking foreign agents operating in New York within walking distance of the UN. There is still another Mao-ist front functioning in San Francisco.

These "People's Republic of China" agencies pour considerable revolutionary literature into the U. S. from these fronts on each coast. Especially effective are appeals to the youth which have resulted in the launching of Mao-ist street action groups in the past two years.

What makes all this most ironic is the fact that the Chinese Communist agencies can operate in the U. S. quite legally so long as they file under the Foreign Agents Registration Act.

This is permitted in the U. S. but the Peking government does not reciprocate. Nor does its post office permit U. S. literature to be mailed into the mainland. Possession of American literature, except for official use, is punishable by death.

China Books and Periodicals run by Henry H. Noyes, 292 Gough Street, San Francisco.

Imported Publications and Products, 1 Union Square, New York, N. Y.

This is a book, periodical and subscription agency. Its foreign principals are Guozi Shudian, Peking; and The China Welfare Institute, Shanghai.

The final agency, or agent, will stir memories to those who have covered labor for several decades. He is Edwin S. Smith, 24 West 45th Street, New York, N. Y. Smith once was on the National Labor Relations Board and many anti-Communists complained that they suffered at his hands.

The major outlets for Chinese Communist propaganda in this country are China Books and Periodicals, Imported Publications and Products, and World Books. Among the publications flooding the U. S. are a monthly magazine, China Reconstructs; a weekly news magazine, Peking Review; a magazine called China Pictoral; another magazine for young people called Evergreen, and a long series of booklets on political matters as well as politically orientated novels.

Much of this literature hammers away at the U. S. position in South Viet Nam. Thus the Peking government is able to get its propaganda over right in the heartland of the U. S. Some of the appeals are catching on. Young people have demonstrated against war since the first slingshot was invented. This is the purpose of the Chinese mainland literature -- to stir youthful action groups into "peace" demonstrations on the big city streets.

Then the news reports and the pictures of the youthful demonstrators being hauled off by the police, or herded behind wooden horses, or tangling with the authorities will be shown in Asia to prove that the youth of America are opposed to holding actions in Asia.

The Chinese Communist literature also camouflaged the Peking government's production of an atomic bomb. The material distributed here attacked the Soviets for signing the test ban without first insisting on the destruction of all nuclear weapons.

A survey of the three New York based Chinese Communist foreign agents headquarters revealed that there is a steady stream of young people visiting them. They purchase the literature in lots and bring in lists of subscriptions.

There is also a goodly number of U. N. diplomats who use the headquarters to pick up the Chinese Communist periodicals to catch the latest nuance of the party line. These very same members of the U. N. missions of the antagonistic Asian-North African bloc have been noted in headquarters of the Mao-ist youth organizations who boast of their militant street action.

At the very least, the Chinese Communists can't complain that they don't enjoy freedom of speech inside the land they vow almost fully to destroy.

Donald Phillips Featured in Missionary Rally

Rev. Donald E. Phillips, who has spent eight years in Nigeria, West Africa, will be the featured speaker at a missionary rally at First Assembly, 310 S. Kingshighway, Sikeston, Pastor James E. Smith announces. Living in Africa's most stable republic before and after independence has given the Rev. Mr. Phillips a unique insight into the country and its problems.

As a child the Rev. Mr. Phillips went to Africa with his missionary parents in 1939. His father, the Rev. Mr. Everett L. Phillips, was the first Assemblies of God missionary appointed to Nigeria and was founder of the Bible institute in which his son now teaches. The second generation missionary returned to Nigeria in 1961 under appointment of the Foreign Missions Department of the Assemblies of God with international headquarters in Springfield, Missouri.

An instructor at Central Bible Institute of Nigeria, the Rev. Mr. Phillips teaches 125 students from 22 different tribes on the Umuahia campus. He is also in charge of the campus Book Store. Between school sessions he has supervised Assemblies of God churches in the Abakaliki area of the country and served on the Literature Management Committee which directs literature production and distribution among 55,000,000 Nigerians. He has also held numerous open air evangelistic campaigns and served as national youth director.

In preparation for his missionary service in Africa, the Rev. Mr. Phillips graduated from Central Bible Institute, Springfield, Missouri, and pastored in Bruce, South Dakota. He is currently writing his thesis for a Master of Arts degree to be granted by the Missouri seminary in 1965.

Mrs. Phillips is also a graduate of Central Bible Institute in Springfield, Missouri, and is a specialist in the sign language for the deaf. She introduced the deaf ministry into the curriculum of Central Bible Institute of Nigeria to train Nigerian pastors for ministry among the deaf of their own country. During her next missionary term Mrs. Phillips will also serve as director of the Correspondence Bible School which has 40,000 students enrolled.

Traveling with the Rev. and Mrs. Phillips is their son Bradley who speaks the Nigerian languages Ibo and Ifik fluently. The public is cordially invited to attend the missionary rally which begins at 10:45 a.m.

Miss Findley of Essex Is Wed To James Harbin

POPLAR BLUFF--Baskets of white gladioli, enhanced with red ribbon bows, and lighted tapers in candelabra also decorated with red bows, formed the background in the Assembly of God Church in Morehouse on December 18 for the wedding of Miss Margie Findley of Route 2, Essex and James Robert Harbin. The Rev. George Hill performed the double ring ceremony at 8 o'clock that night following wedding music presented by Miss Tera Finklea of Dexter, pianist, and Miss Linda Coffey of Essex, soloist. She sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Lord's Prayer".

Paul Findley, brother of the bride, gave her in marriage. She was attired in a floor length white satin and Chantilly lace gown fashioned with a bouffant skirt and fitted lace bodice which came to a point in front and had long tapering sleeves and a high neckline. Her finger-tip length veil of silk illusion was secured to a crown trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a bridal bouquet of white carnations atop a white Bible.

Miss Gail Harbin of Route 4, Sikeston, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and wore a street length red brocade satin dress, matching red hat covered with veiling and carried a nosegay of peppermint carnations.

Candles were lighted by Miss Carol Ruth and Miss Nellene Perry of Morehouse who also wore red brocade satin, street length dresses and wristlets of white dwarf mums. Little Miss Debra Brown of Essex, niece of the bride, was flower girl and was dressed in white organdy with a red scalloped overskirt and red sash. She carried a basket of white dwarf mums.

Mr. Harbin, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Harbin of Route 4, Sikeston, chose Eldon Moore of Morehouse as his best man and rings were carried by Michael Brown of Essex, nephew of the bride. Ushers were Johnny Childers and C. L. Gadberry, both of Sikeston.

Mrs. Findley wore for her daughter's wedding a navy blue dress and Mrs. Harbin, mother of the bridegroom, chose a two piece beige dress. Their corsages were white carnations.

A reception was given in the church immediately after the wedding. The bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth with a border of embroidered red roses. The centerpiece was of white spider mums, flanked by lighted red candles. A three tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, was at one end of the table and a crystal punch service at the opposite end. Serving the guests were Miss Louise Stephens of Dexter and Miss Vera Almond of Bloomfield. Miss Rose Harbin, sister of the bridegroom was at the guest book.

After a honeymoon to an undisclosed destination, Mr. and Mrs. Harbin will be at home in Bloomfield. For travel the bride wore a dark green knit two-piece suit and the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The former Miss Findley is employed in the Stoddard County ASC Office in Bloomfield where she will continue her work. Mr. Harbin is employed by the Missouri State Highway Department in Sikeston.

Out-of -town guests were her brother-in-law and sister, the Rev. and Mrs. Al Ragsdale of Memphis, Tenn.

MISS JANEANN CLEMENTS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Clements, 235 N. Handy St. Sikeston, has completed six months of vocational training at the Cape Girardeau Business School in Cape Girardeau. She is now employed as a receptionist in the office of Dr. Albert Steeler in Memphis, Tenn. Miss Clements, a graduate of Sikeston High school, now resides at 281 South Second St. in Memphis.

A YEAR TO REMEMBER— A BOOK TO TREASURE!

THE WORLD IN 1964

When the world's foremost news gathering agency, The Associated Press, in cooperation with this and other member newspapers, decided to publish a memorable book of the year, it wanted to put out more than just another news annual or almanac.

So it assigned to the task the team of outstanding writers that made an all time best seller of The Torch Is Passed, the story of the Kennedy tragedy.

The results were foreseeable — a volume that captures the excitement and immediacy of a great news year and that relates it to the American newspaper reader. It's a sure bet as a collector's item—something you won't want to miss—and as a solid reference book for student or general reader.

Cape State Stomps McKendree 85-63

Thal Thrower Hits For 19 To Lead Way

(by Dan Whittle)

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The SEMO State Indians put their total number of victories in the double figures last night by beating McKendree 85-63. This victory gives the Indians a ten and three over-all won-lost record. In conference play they are 2-0.

Cape held McKendree scoreless for five minutes and 38 seconds at the outset and three times the Indians had 26 point leads. Thal Thrower led the way with 19 points.

The Indians first 20 point advantage came when big 6' 7" Jack Becker hit a 10 ft. jumpshot making the score 35-14 with 4:23 left the first half. First half play ended with score 48-22.

Thrower had contributed 14 points to the 26 point bulge of the Indians, Becker followed up with 15.

After the intermission McKendree quickly got their offensive attack underway when Chuck Garrett drilled one from 20 feet out. But the Indians had pulled out front and were not to have their lead vanish as they swapped basket per basket the last half.

Cape's Becker followed Throwers leading 10 points closely with a 17 tally production. Lester Long was McKendrees high scorer with 19.

SEMO State College goes against Northwest Missouri State here Saturday looking for its third straight MIAA victory.

Game time at Houck Field House is 8 p.m. SEMO met the Bearcats a week ago on the Maryville Floor, winning easily by a 96-64 score. The Indians have also won from Northeast Missouri at Kirksville, giving them a clean 2-0 slate in the league, while Northwest Missouri has played only the game with SEMO and stand 0-1.

Coach Charles Parsley has cautioned his team against a let-down against the weaker Bearcats, since an upset loss could put a damper on any hopes for a fifth straight conference title.

"We have to win the games we should win," Parsley said, "so that we can stand a loss or two later against the top teams in the conference."

To win Saturday, SEMO will have to contain 6-5 center Dave Remund, who missed the earlier game with an injury, and forward Bill Yaeger, who scored 23 points in the initial encounter. The Maryville squad was only outscored from the field by one field goal in last Saturday's game, 30-29.

Guard Mike Gross contunues to lead Southeast Missouri in scoring with a 19.4 average, while center Jack Becker follows with 13.3, also leading in rebounding with an 11.5 average. Forward Kermit Meystedt, hampered by a cold for the past week, is third with an 11.5 point average, and is second in rebounding with an average of nine.

South Rates Over North

HONOLULU AP -- The South All-Stars, led by Craig Morton, Gale Sayer and Larry Elkins, rate as slight favorites over the North in the annual Hula Bowl game tonight.

And, the South gained more of an edge Thursday when Len Cassanoga, co - coach of the North, pulled out of the game and flew back to the mainland.

Despite weather forecasts for showers, an all - out passing duel is expected, with California's Morton facing two formidable opponents in Jerry Rhome of Tulsa and Bob Berry of Oregon.

For the first time in its 19-year history, the Hula Bowl will be nationally televised. The game will be video - taped here with the tape flown immediately to Los Angeles for editing and showing Saturday afternoon on the mainland.

NCAA Opens Meeting

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association opens it 59th annual convention today, a convention that is expected to center around the bitter war with the Amateur Athletic Union over control of amateur athletics in this country.

Another major item on the agenda is NCAA concern over premature signing of collegiate athletes by professional football leagues.

The convention proper opens Monday, but the vanguard of some 3,000 delegates was on hand for today's opening session, involving registration and meeting of college track and baseball coaches.

Main issues when the 500-plus voting delegates — mostly athletic directors and faculty representatives—get down to business, involve what to do about the eager-beaver pros, the NCAA-AAU feud, and an academic standard for NCAA-sponsored competiton.

The way will be cleared for action on the premature pro signing of football collegians at a Sunday session of the Committee on College-Professional Relations.

Walter Byers, NCAA executive director, said the NCAA's program against pros' jumping the gun in signing collegians probably will be aimed at a "reasonable course" of action.

Byers said the solution obviously was to convince the pro leagues that player drafts should be conducted after bowl games.

Namath Predicted To Be Biggest Bust Ever

Joe Namath's steel gray eyes flash fire when he is reminded of the derisive remarks of pro football veterans over his fantastic $400,000 contract — and the suggestion that he could prove the game's biggest bust.

Frank Ryan, quarterback of the National League champion Cleveland Browns, commented facetiously that if a rookie quarterback with a bum knee is worth that kind of money, "then I must be worth a million."

Even more bitter words came from Namath's future teammates on the New York Jets of the American League--quarterbacks Dick Wood, Mike Taliaferro and Pete Liske.

"I don't see how anybody coming out of college is worth that much," said Wood. "Sounds impossible," added Taliaferro. "I'd lie if I didn't say I was disappointed," complained Liske.

Dave (Hawk) Hanner, 10-year tackle of the Green Bay Packers, said he didn't believe Namath or any other bonus baby in pro football would be willing to pay the price.

"Pay the price?" Namath blurted today, talking between practice sessions for Saturday's Senior Bowl game. "This guy hasn't spent four years at Alabama or he'd never make a statement like that.

"You don't play four years under Coach Bryant (Paul Bear Bryant, the Alabama coach) without paying the price. You give every gut you have or you don't play."

Namath admitted that he was concerned by the furor raised in pro football over his incredible three-year contract and bonuses, the largest financial outlay ever handed a player.

"I can't blame some of the fellows for being skeptical and even sore, but they should understand the circumstances. They should give me a chance to prove myself before they come down on my head like this."

The 194-pound, 6-foot-2 signal caller with the rifle arm is determined to silence his critics by making good.

"I know they'll be laying for me—it's just natural," he said. "But I'm not scared. I don't run scared any more. I've had all the scare knocked out of me.

"I know pro football is tough, but ability doesn't change. The difference in pro and college football is that the pros are smarter. They have learned more. They are big and smart and good at every position but I figure I can learn, too.

"I will learn, and, if I have my way, I'll play football for 20 years. I love it."

Namath gives the impression of a young man who doesn't frighten easily. Born of Hungarian parents and reared in western Pennsylvania, he looks like a collection of nuts and bolts, tough leather and sheer nerve.

He talks in an almost inaudible whisper—low, every word measured and with an incongrous mixture of modesty and brash confidence.

At times, he appears cocky.

He is quiet but not bashful. On the campus at Tuscaloosa, he may turn up one day wearing a rakish beret and the next day a racy zoot suit. Other students follow suit. When the band strikes up a jazzy tune, Joe may do an impromptu twist on the 50-yard line.

They say no man in the game, pro or college, can get the ball away more quickly. With a lightning flick of the wrist, he can heave the ball 30 or 40 yards and place it on a 50-cent piece.

"I had to get the ball off in a hurry or I'd have been smothered," Joe explained, recalling his earlier days.

He was born in Beaver Falls, Pa., a steel center of 30,000 residents 30 miles northwest of Pittsburgh.

He played football with his three brothers—John, Bob and Frank—on a dirt road which was Sixth Street. No grass, no lines, just dirt.

"Most of the time we played touch football but sometime we tackled, and I was half the size of the other boys," Namath said.

"When I wasn't playing, I practiced by throwing the ball against the side of the laundry and I broke every window in the place.

"In high school, I was the smallest boy on the team. I only weighed about 140 pounds. I took a real beating."

Although he liked both basketball and baseball better than football, he took up football, he said, in self defense.

"I shined shoes at Gus' Top Hat—which later burned down—for 50 cents a week. Until I got my college scholarship, I was afraid I was going to have to spend my life in the steel mills.

"I dreaded that. I saw my father come home tired and grimy. I hated it. I even thought about entering the Air Force as a career just to keep out of those mills.

"Then I got a chance to play football at Alabama. That seemed like heaven to me. It was hard, but I welcomed it. And that's why I intend to make good as a pro—anything but those steel mills."

Gilmer New Lion Coach

The Lions and millionaire owner William Clay Ford signed Gilmer Thursday to a reported $35,000-a-year contract at a secret meeting at club headquarters.

Gilmer, lured away from the Minnesota Vikings where he was a top aide to coach Norm Van Brocklin for four years, succeeds the resigned coach George Wilson, victim of the Lions' coaching upheaval last month.

The 38-year-old Alabaman, star of the great Crimson Tide teams of the middle and late 1940s and who set records galore for his era, was grabbed up by the Lions less than three weeks after Wilson's resignation following the firing of all his five assistant coaches.

Ford, of whom fans nere were critical for his handling of the pre - Christmas coach removals, said he was happy to get Gilmer.

The Lions reportedly received the approval of the Vikings before they made their tender to Gilmer. The clubs were said to have talked together beforehand and the Vikings gave the Lions a go-ahead in their effort.

On one score surely the Lions have added to club luster.

Gilmer, a horse lover with a stable of his own, is apt to wear his 10-gallon hat and cowboy boots out in public as well as on the football sidelines where his getup is a familiar sight to NFL fans.

Detroit won't be new to Gilmer. He played quarterback for the Lions in 1955 and 1956. But in those seasons he was in the shade of the illustrious Bobby Layne and seldom saw any action. The Lions traded him to the Pittsburgh Steelers in 1957.

The Lions signed Gilmer in a private session at club headquarters where he talked with Ford, General Manager Edwin J. Anderson, personnel boss Russ Thomas, and Bud Erickson, assistant general manager.

A Tribute To The Matthews Pirates

What gives with them crazy Matthews Pirates? It was thought pre-seasonally that they would be doing wonders if they could win one ballgame and if they by chance did come up with a winning team, then miracles do happen.

They are at the half-way mark and their record is six wins and four losses and things appear brighter for them now than ever before in the season.

There are several contributing factors that a person can see that have helped the Pirates. One of them is desire. Desire that hasn't been there at Matthews in recent years, particularly last year.

Something else different is that the boy's play the game, not the coach. Their coach, Gary Vaughn, which by the way, this is his rookie year in the coaching field, said, "My boys make mistakes sure, and when one of them does, then it's the other team members that come to the rescue. I'm not out there, they are."

Last, but certainly not least, and something Matthews needed, is sportsmanship. This year their boys are young gentlemen on the floor. They play for the fun that is in basketball and have come to believe that it should be that way and nothing is going to hinder their fun. For example, one of their players has had the habit of losing his temper and his head in the years before that he has played. But this year, it's different. In fact, there was a game that he began to lose control of himself and requested to be benched on his own accord.

Missouri's George Flamank

If George Flamank can just keep doin' what comes naturally against Kansas basketball Jayhawks, Mizzou must be rated a threat to snip K. U.'s winning streak at six straight in Lawrence this Saturday night.

Flamank, a 6-5 Tiger senior, was Mr. Bad News to Kansas twice as Missouri swept a three-game set last winter. In a Big Eight tournament meeting, he drove the lane repeatedly for a 20-point salvo in the Bengals' 63-61 triumph.

Then at Lawrence, George took Gary Garner's missed shot off the rim and poked it home just ahead of the final buzzer for a 59-58 decision.

The Albany, Mo., veteran, whose father captained the Tigers' 1927 football team, recorded a career high of 26 points last week in Missouri's tourney loss to Colorado. He was slowed earlier in the season by an energy-sapping virus --but currently carries a 12.5 average, third on the Mizzou tables.

A Few Reminders

New Year resolutions were probably forgotten by noon New Years day.

The nature of resolutions is universal, we make them, but really don't intend to keep them. Where fishing is concerned, resolutions are seldom needed. Common sense reminders are more appropriate.

From me to you I pass along a few of these little reminders given to me from the Mercury Outboards.

1. Fishing is fun, not work. Relax.
2. Respect property rights. Ask permission.
3. Observe safety rules. Hooks are for fish, not people.
4. Report law violators. That's your fish and game they're swiping.
5. Take the kids along. Fishin's good education.
8. Care for equipment. It's cheaper in the long run.
7. Consume what you catch. Or release them.
8. Avoid litterbugging. Fish don't thrive on empty beer cans.

Presidential Succession And Inability

WASHINGTON, January 7 -- New provisions for quickly transferring the duties and powers of the Presidency in the event of the death or inability of the President, and to assure that the United States is never without a Vice President ready to assume Presidential responsibilities, were proposed today by the Research and Policy Committee of the Committee for Economic Development (CED).

"The urgency of national action to resolve the doubts and uncertainties clouding Presidential succession and inability cannot be overstressed," the CED statement on national policy says. "Failure to correct the deficiencies will subject the nation to risks and hazards that are avoidable. Prompt action is imperative. . .The United States of America must have one person wielding the powers and duties of the Presidency at all times."

To make certain that this condition prevails the Committee offered two major proposals:

(1) - Amending the Constitution to provide that any vacancy in the office of Vice President be filled by giving the President authority to nominate a Vice President subject to approval by joint session of Congress.

(2) - Placing in the hands of the Cabinet authority to decide the beginning of Presidential inability, the Vice President concurring. The ending of inability should also be determined by the Cabinet, with the President confirming.

Through the adoption of these two proposals, the policy statements says, the United States will always have one person -- and only one person-- exercising the powers and duties of the Presidency.

The statement was made public by the Research and Policy Committee of CED, of which Theodore O. Yntema, chairman, finance committee, Ford Motor Company, is the chairman. It was prepared by the Committee for Improvement of Management in Government (CIMG) under the chairmanship of Marion B. Folsom, former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare and former Under Secretary of the Treasury.

The Committee for Economic Development is a nonprofit, nonpolitical research and educational organization of 200 business executives and educators who engage in research on major national and international economic problems with the purpose of promoting high employment with stable economic growth.

The CIMG was established in 1963 by the CED Board of Trustees to make continuing studies of the basic issues arising in the management of federal, state, and local government affairs, and to formulate proposals for the improvement of public administration. Its work receives financial support from the Carnegie Corporation and other foundations.

After pointing out the reasons why the Presidency is "the most important job in the world" -- reasons which include Presidential control of "the nuclear trigger" -- the report states that a President's death or serious illness would create the risk of national disaster. Although in 1963 the Presidential powers and duties were quickly assumed (in less than two hours) by the new President, the report warns that there are situations under which a similarly smooth transition would not occur.

"There is no guarantee that virtually uninterrupted exercise of Presidential powers and duties would always be repeated. There are gaps and ambiguities in the Constitutional language concerning vacancy or inability in the Presidential office (Art. II Sec. I, U. S. Constitution)."

The Constitution is not clear about what actually constitutes "inability," who determines when such "inability" exists, and whether it is only the "powers and duties" or the "office" itself that devolve on the Vice President under such circumstances.

The report examines a number of solutions to the succession and inability problem that have been advanced, including the proposed Constitutional amendment approved by the Senate last September. Its proposals differ somewhat from the Senate's and from the recommendations recently made public by the American Bar Association. The CIMG measured the various alternatives for solution against several criteria -- continuity, legitimacy, certainty, stability, speed, simplicity, and preservation of the separation of powers fundamental to the United States Constitutional system-- before reaching its own conclusions.

After stressing the need for the quick filling of the post of Vice President when it becomes vacant from any cause, the committee rejects four methods that have been suggested for this purpose: (1) selection of a Vice President by special election; (2) selection by the Electoral College; (3) establishment of a second or legislative Vice President who would automatically become Vice President in case of a vacancy in this office; and (4) selection by Congress.

Instead it calls for amending the Constitution so that any vacancy in the office of Vice President be filled through Presidential nomination with approval by a majority of Senators and Representatives present and voting in a joint session of Congress. The statement says:

"The proposal for nomination of a candidate by the President with approval by one or both Houses of Congress has strongest general support. The restriction of choice to Presidential nominees would insure acceptability to the President. Congressional approval would serve as a check, symbolizing popular participation and establishing legitimacy. . ."

"Those who want the House of Representatives to participate, either separately or in joint session, argue that this would tend to elevate the Vice Presidency above all other executive appointments. Prior approval by both Houses of Congress would strengthen legitimacy. The Senate does not reflect population differences, whereas the Senate and House together duplicate the allocation of electoral votes among the states . . . .

"We suggest that rules of procedure could be adopted making action in joint session more expeditious than with the two Houses voting separately. We are impressed by the fact that a joint session would duplicate electoral vote allocation among the several states."

In discussing the line of succession the CED statement points out that with its provision for keeping the Vice Presidency filled at all times "the further line of Presidential succession loses much of its importance." Although it has never happened, however, it is conceivable that both the Presidency and the Vice Presidency could become vacant simultaneously.

The 1947 succession law (presently in effect) places the Speaker of the House first in line of succession, followed by the President PRO TEMPORE of the Senate, and then members of the Cabinet.

The statement lists several objections to the present law and says "we recommend that the 1886 succession law be restored with the heads of executive departments (the Cabinet) taking their former positions in the line of succession."

The statement devotes much attention to how and under what circumstances Presidential disability shall be determined. The Constitutional provision concerning this problem raises questions on three important points, the statement says: (1) In case of Presidential inability, whether the Vice President assumes "the powers and duties" of the Presidency or the "office" itself; (2 how commencement of Presidential inability is established; and (3) how termination of Presidential inability is decided.

Since "inability" is not defined in the Constitution and Congress "lacks final authority to define Constitutional terms" the statement calls for an amendment to the Constitution to clarify the method of determining "inability."

On the grounds that an attempt to define or amplify the meaning of "inability" would be unduly restrictive, the Committee would leave the term undefined in the Constitution. "Inability," it says, should "continue to be understood to mean any situation in which the President is unable to exercise the powers and duties of his office."

Many suggestions have been made for determining when Presidential inability exists, including the Vice President declaring it on his own authority, use of a special tribunal, and the Cabinet acting on its own authority. The Committee examined each at length and concludes that". . .the beginning of Presidential inability (unless declared by the President himself) be determined by a majority vote of the Cabinet, the Vice President concurring, and that discussions leading to such vote may be initiated by the Vice President or any member of the Cabinet."

The Committee then discusses several suggested methods for determining when inability ends. These include allowing the President alone to decide; agreement by the President and Vice President; in case of disagreement giving the Vice President power of final decision or allowing the President to decide unless opposed by the Cabinet and at least two-thirds of both Houses of Congress; and decision by majority vote of the Cabinet.

The Committee concludes that ". . .the responsibility for determining the ending of Presidential inability (should) be placed on the Cabinet, the President concurring in this decision."

Footnotes of comment, reservation, or dissent are contributed by three trustees of CED: William Benton (who urges abolition of the Vice Presidency and a general election in the case of a President's death), John F. Merriam, and C. Wrede Petersmeyer.

Of fragrant peace. Like quiet,
consoling hands
I feel the dew-hung branches touch my arm;
Laces of emerald and sapphire strands
Are woven through the hills around the farm.
And down the road I see a church-crowned hill,
The morning star above a stalwart pine;
I hear a chorister--a whippoor-will
Rehearsing songs that touch a heart like mine,
In Hardeman, my favorite wondering-place,
Among the hills I find sequestered grace.

Lee Beal Has Stormy Trip

Mrs. Henrietta Beal, 518 Matthews has received word from her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Beal, that they would arrive in St. Louis Wednesday or Thursday, after a delayed voyage from Ankara, Turkey.

Mr. Beal is assistant consulate general in the state department and for the past two years has served in Ankara.

The family was on the way home to Washington D. C., when their ship, the Independence, encountered a heavy storm that covered a 1,000 mile ocean radius and it was delayed in arriving to this country by 40 hours. The large ship was forced to reduce its speed from 40 knots to two knots, when they encountered the storm New Year's eve, and finally reached port Sunday night. Sixteen passengers were injured during the heavy storm.

He will visit in Sikeston for one month, after which the family will return to Washington, where he will attend school for two months, before embarking for Jordan for another two-year assignment. His wife and daughter, Michell, age one and one-half years, will be met in St. Louis by his mother and two brothers, Clem Beal of Sikeston, and William Beal of Cape Girardeau.

Overfelt Director Of Oil Council

JEFFERSON CITY - Sam B. Overfelt, 35, is new executive director of the Missouri Oil Council. He succeeds D. Gary Spencer, who is going to Washington with the American Petroleum Institute.

Overfelt formerly was Gov. John M. Dalton's legal assistant. Later he was chief counsel of the State Insurance Division and recently has been a legislative representative for Missouri's railroads.

Overfelt formerly practiced law in Springfield and was president of the Missouri Young Democrats. He is national committeeman for the Young Democrats now.

At a Detroit factory a production employe appeared in the superintendent's office to demand a day off with pay--to make up for the coffee breaks he had missed while on vacation.

Senator Jennings Randolph to Speak at AGC Meeting

JEFFERSON CITY - Featured at the 39th Annual Meeting of the Associated General Contractors of Missouri will be an outline of state highway and federal construction in the state during 1965. In addition, the construction outlook after 1972 will be forecast by Sen. Jennings Randolph (D-W. Va.), chairman of the Senate subcommittee on roads.

Scheduled for Jan. 13 and 14 at the Hotel Muehlebach in Kansas City, the convention program will include a talk by Marvin J. Snider, chief engineer, Missouri State Highway Department, who will discuss Missouri's highway program for the coming year. On the same program, will be Lt. Col. C. R. Supplee, deputy district engineer, Kansas City District of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers; and Lt. Col. Harry B. Barke, deputy district engineer, St. Louis District of the Corps of Engineers. The two officers will outline the Corps program for Missouri for 1965.

Sen. Randolph, who is also a member of the Senate committee on public works, will speak on "Trends in Transportation After 1972," at 2:15 p.m., Jan. 14, in the Colonial Ballroom of the hotel. The year 1972 is the date when the present Interstate Highway Program expires.

Included on the convention program will be the presentation of the association's annual safety awards. In addition, the group's "E.C.I. Wagner Award" will be presented to two contractors who have compiled outstanding safety records during the last five years and who have made outstanding contributions to the cause of construction safety.

The names of the Wagner Award winners will be withheld until the presentation by E.C.I. Wagner, of Jefferson City.

The annual safety awards will be presented by R. P. Stephens, chairman of the Accident Prevention Committee of the Missouri AGC.

Among other activities at the annual meeting will be a special program on Workmen's Compensation and Unemployment Compensation featuring Seldon E. Brown, St. Louis, Director of Insurance and Workmen's Compensation, Associated Industries of Missouri; and E.E. Diemer, St. Louis, Director of Research of the Associated Industries.

Also included in the convention functions will be the installation of officers of the association, presentation of 25-year membership certificates to Clark Construction Co., St. Joseph, and the W. J. Menefee Construction Co., Sedalia.

White House Changes The Visit Hours

WASHINGTON - The White House has changed its regular visiting days for inaugural week.

Visitors will be admitted Monday, Jan. 18, but the White House will be closed on inaugural day, Jan. 20. Visitors ordinarily are not admitted on Monday.

The White House explained visitors would be admitted that Monday because of the large number of out of town people expected for inaugural ceremonies.

Washington U. To Conduct Tax Clinic

A small Business Administration will conduct a Tax Clinic for owners, managers, or accountants of small businesses, Wednesday, January 27, 1965. It is sponsored by the School of Business and University of Washington and St. Louis. The meeting will be conducted on the Washington University Campus.

Purpose of this Tax Clinic is to aid the small business man in a better understanding of the tax laws.

The program schedule will begin Wednesday, January 27, at 8:30 a.m. and will adjourn 3:00 p.m. of the same day.

Registeration must be made in advance prior to January 22, 1965. The fee for one day Tax Clinic is $10.00 per person, which includes admission to all sessions and lunch.

Race problem?

Men of conscience feel our nation's problems in their souls. And our souls must be the starting place for our recognition of the inalienable rights of man.

If you live in an area where, because of tradition, acceptance of human dignity for all is undiscovered—seek to discover what your faith says about human dignity, the brotherhood of man.

If you live in an area where greater "freedom" seems apparent—examine the situation in the light of your faith, for the fullest meanings of unselfishness and brotherhood.

You can help overcome the lack of understanding in our land . . . and possibly a chasm in your own heart. Worship this week . . . put your faith to work for a fuller understanding of yourself, for a fuller unity of spirit among all men.

Looking Back Over The Years

50 YEARS AGO
January 8, 1915

40 YEARS AGO
January 8, 1925

The Bowman building on Center street is rapidly being put in order by Contractor Young, for the new picture show. Thos. Arnold, the manager and owner, hopes to be able to open the house to the public about January 20th. The building, when completed, will be equipped with 300 opera chairs to start with and more added if needed, have three exits and the latest in moving picture machines. Piano music will add to the picture and Miss Madge Davis, teacher of music in the Morehouse High School, will preside at the piano.

Mr. and Mrs. Loomis Mayfield entertained Sunday with a family dinner. Covers were laid for: Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Mayfield, Mr. and Mrs. James Klein, Mrs. J. E. Marshall, Mrs. C. D. Matthews, sr., Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Galeener and family, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Yount and son, Misses Mayme Marshall and Camille Klein.

Capt. Will L. Fisher, stationed at Schofield Barracks, Honolulu, has the thanks of the editor's family for a pound of coffee, six cans of perserves and one pound of candied pineapple sent for a Christmas gift. It took but 12 days for the package to reach us.

A. F. Lindsay left Sunday for Jefferson City, to be sworn in and represent this district in the House of Representatives.

30 YEARS AGO
January 8, 1935

Mrs. Pernecie T. Lescher, a native of Southeast Missouri and a resident of Sikeston for 50 years, died at her home here early Friday morning.

A white oak bedroom suite, known to be 110 years old and thought to be much older, is now on display in a window of the Wolf House Furniture Co., on Front street.

The Illmo High School Mustangs won a double-header from the Sikeston Bulldogs, who played their first home game of the season Friday night. The Illmo boys defeated Sikeston 31 to 26 during a rally in the 1st few minutes of play, while the Illmo girls won 27 to 22 from the Sikeston girls, who were playing their first game this year.

Mrs. Buford Baber and Miss Burdeen Schroff honored Mrs. Tharon Stallings at a miscellaneous shower held at Mrs. Baber's home on Kendall street Saturday evening. Bridge prizes were won by Miss Ruth McCoy and Mrs. Jack Bowman.

20 YEARS AGO
January 8, 1945

Two small Negro children were burned to death Monday afternoon when fire of unexplained origin destroyed the small frame house in which they lived with their parents, Mary and Peter Hobbs, in Sunset addition.

First realization of the cost of the great German drive at Christmas-time came to Sikeston this week with announcement of the death of two Sikeston men. Both were killed on December 26, according to information received from the War Department by relatives here. Lt. James L. Kissack, husband of the former Miss Margaret Wilson, was killed in action in Germany. No details were given. Mrs. Wm. E. Turner was advised Sunday night of the death of her husband, Pfc. Turner, in Luxembourg on the 26th.

Lt. Vance Engram, who sustained serious injuries while fighting in Italy several weeks ago, has been transferred to the Army hospital at Salt Lake City, Utah, for treatment. His wife, who has been employed in the office of the International Shoe Factory here, plans to join him within the next several days.

Miss Georgene Sutton, who had been residing in California since last spring, is returning to Sikeston to reside.

PRAYER For Today From The Upper Room

"I will. . .that men pray everywhere, lifting up holy hands, without wrath and doubting. (I Timothy 2:8)

PRAYER: Our Father, teach us, we pray Thee, the power of prayer. May we learn that we can cast our burdens at the feet of Christ in prayer and receive strength sufficient to live the Christian life. In His name. Amen.

POETIC LICENSE

When French poet Pierre Emmanuel taught at Harvard summer school a few years ago, students attended his lectures in droves. The administration was dismayed, however, when Emmanuel left for Paris at the end of the session without submitting grades for his students. A cable was dispatched to him, and back came the poet's reply: "Give them all A's. I enjoyed the course."

Miss Robinett Is Appointed Aide To Symington

WASHINGTON - Miss Harriet Robnett, St. Louis attorney, has been named legislative assistant to Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo.

Miss Robnett has been law clerk to U.S. District Judge James H. Meredith of St. Louis since her graduation from Washington University Law School and admission to the Missouri bar in 1961.

Before studying law, Miss Robnett was an editor in the Associated Press bureau in Kansas City. A native of Columbia, Mo., she studied journalism and graduated from the University of Missouri.

While attending Washington U., she was a staff producer and director of TV programs for station KSD, St. Louis.

Earl G. Mackey, whose job she will take in Washington, returned to Missouri to enter private law practice at Cape Girardeau after two years with Symington.

Gov. Dalton Makes Several Appointments to State Jobs

JEFFERSON CITY - Wayne Waldo of Waynesville was appointed chief counsel of the Missouri Public Service Commission by Gov. John M. Dalton Monday.

Waldo, who has been the governor's legal assistant, will succeed Glenn D. Evans of Jefferson City in the $12,500 a year job. Evans will stay on as assistant counsel.

The governor also appointed: Mrs. Sallie Hailey of Arrow Rock judge of the first district of the Saline County Court. She is Democratic national committeewoman for Missouri and the outgoing director of the Department of Business and Administration.

Col. Joseph S. Withington of DeSoto, a retired Army officer, as presiding judge of the Jefferson County Court. He succeeds Herbert Moss, who was elected circuit judge in November.

Jack L. Duncan as prosecuting attorney of Iron County succeeding Marvin L. Dinger, who resigned.

William S. Morris of Kansas County public administrator. Morris, a leading supporter of Gov.-elect Warren E. Hearnes in Kansas City, has been filling out the term of the late Perrin D. McElroy who was re-elected in November but died the day after the election.

Lee C. Fine, 47, took over today as State Director of Parks, succeeding C. E. Dutch Wyatt of Poplar Bluff.

The State Park Board chose Fine Monday. Gov. John M. Dalton immediately reappointed Wyatt as Butler County superintendent of schools, the job he left six months ago to become park director. Wyatt has been ill recently with a blood clot.

Fine has been assistant forester in charge of fire control for the State Conservation Commission five years.

LEST I FORGET

A stalwart sentinel, whose mighty sword,
The age old steeple, seems to reach the sky,
Massive open doors, like arms, extend toward
Me, and bid me come. . . humbly, I comply.
To him on bended knee, I bare my heart,
I know He knows, but still I must confess,
Now once again the upward trail I start
And promise from wayward ways to digress.
So please, dear Lord, as oft you have before,
Set me aright, and take me by the hand,
Lead me more often through this widespread door.
That others, too, may know just where I stand.
I need Thee, Lord, no matter where I go,
Unworthy though I be, teach me to grow.

Voters in Stonington, Conn., went to the polls and elected Allen Abbott, Harry Chiappone and Robert Stillman street commissioners. But the victory was short-lived. At the same time the voters adopted a new borough charter abolishing the street commission.

TONGUE-TIED?

A wittier person there never was,
Than I, when I'm all alone;
Why is it then, around other people,
My tongue turns into stone?
The saucy quips, the brilliant quotes,
They fly when there's just me;
But when I want to show them off,
They all turn tail and flee.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, Jan. 8, the eighth day of 1965. There are 357 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1815, the Battle of New Orleans was fought. Gen. Andrew Jackson's entrenched riflemen turned back a force of British regulars, saving the Mississippi Valley from invasion.

On this date

In 1798, the 11th Amendment to the Constitution was proclaimed, preventing, lawsuits against the federal government.

In 1923, France started her military occupation of the Ruhr Valley.

Five years ago — Iraqi Premier Abdul Karim Kassemm, in a speech in Baghdad, accused the United Arab Republic of dictatorial oppression in Syria.

One year ago — President Johnson, in his State of the Union message, called for a program to end poverty and discrimination at home and a world cutback in production of materials for nuclear weapons.

The North American form of the falcon is often called the duck hawk. When falconry was the sport of kings, the peregrine was the most popular falcon. A trained bird, when released, normally climbs for altitude with swift wingbeats, then drops with closed wings on flying waterfowl and other birds. Striking with clenched talons, it kills by impact. It can attain a speed of 180 miles per hour in its power dive

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: My wife took a few lessons in voice before we were married (18 years ago). The truth is she can't carry a note with a co-singer.

Whenever we go to a party Isobel gets a few beers and wants to give a recital. What Isobel does best is the hog-calling bit. She was raised near Ida Grove, Iowa, and won the county hog-calling championship for three straight years. When the party gets going good everyone hollers, "Call the hogs, Isobel," but she wants to sing opera. Nobody wants opera; they want her specialty. Isobel says it isn't dignified.

Please tell her to be a sport. She thinks you're great and she'll listen to you. --BUCK

Dear Buck: Since I'm an Iowa girl myself I can tell you that a good hog-caller can be proud. That "Soo-eeey-- sooey sooey" bit is an art. C'mon, Isobel, give the folks what they want.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been laughing my head off over your cornball column for years. Certainly you've read enough from the miserable marrieds of America to know by this time that marriage is a great little institution -- but not for men.

Why not level with John and Jane Q. Public and tell them the way it is? Every married man I know has that hang-dog look on his face. You can see that the joy of living has been beaten out of him.

The male animal is a roamer by nature--happier when he is unencumbered. And this is the way he was meant to live.

The female, however, needs marriage. She must have a permanent home. She needs a family to give expression to her maternal instincts. It is also better for the economics of the country if women marry because marriage and family responsibilities keep women at home--for a few years at least. Too many females are out in the business world competing with males which creates all sorts of problems.

Since you claim to be a realist, Ann, why don't you state the facts? --MALE MAIL

Dear Mail: So men should be single and women should be married? And just who are women supposed to marry? Each other?

When you get the formula worked out, send it on. It should make fascinating reading.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy who is 13 and already writing to Ann Landers for advice. I didn't think I would need you for a few more years but here I am.

My four-year-old sister is making a wreck out of me. Whenever I want to see a certain TV program Jeanette throws herself down on the floor, and kicks and screams until she gets her way.

Twice last week I had to take Jeanette with me on Saturday afternoon when I went to a friend's house to play table tennis. Today I told my mother I'd rather not go than take my little sister. Jeanette kicked up such a fuss my mother said, "You'll go and take her with you. I can't stand the noise. It's bad for my high blood pressure.

Is this fair? What can I do? -- LIKE TRAPPED

Dear Like: You should not have to take your little sister with you because your mother can't stand to have her at home. When a four-year-old rules the roost by kicking and screaming -- look out. The noises Jeanette is making now are whispers compared to what will come later.

Your mother needs some outside help. She has a spoiled four - year - old on her hands and allowing kids to behave this way is unfair. Such kids grow up thoroughly despised.

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Smoking," enclosing with your request 10¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Setback for Plan to Orbit 3 Astronauts

By HAROLD R. WILLIAMS

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The U.S. plan to orbit three astronauts in an Apollo moon spacecraft in 1966 suffered its first setback today with announcement of major schedule changes.

Also caught in the revisions was the third Saturn manned mission, which was replaced by an unnamed earth orbital test of the lunar excursion module — LEM — which will carry astronauts to the moon's surface.

Dr. William A. Lee, head of the Operations Planning Division at the Manned Spacecraft Center, said the delay in the first three-man orbital flight should be small.

"Instead of making the launch be later in 1966."

Because of the closeness of the schedule, however, problems could send the mission into 1967, observers pointed out.

Original planning called for two unmanned sub-orbital flights of the powerful Saturn 1B rocket. The third, assuming no major setbacks occurred on the previous two, was to be flown by three astronauts.

Lee said the third flight now was scheduled to be a test of the second-stage booster, called the Saturn 4B, and its propellant tanks, which hold liquid hydrogen and oxygen.

To save weight, the Apollo spacecraft will not be used — only a nose cone, Lee said.

The tanks carry 223,500 pounds of fuel and will be filled. In earth orbital trips using the three-stage Apollo spacecraft, the tanks will be only partly filled, Lee said, to reduce weight.

The Saturn 4B will be the third stage on the mighty Saturn 5 rocket and will hurl itself and the Apollo spacecraft into earth orbit.

After four and one-half hours circling the earth, the Saturn 4B's engine will be started and its 200,000 pounds of thrust will fling the spacecraft toward the moon.

"We need to know how the fuel acts in a weightless condition," Lee said. "The only way we can do that is to send it into space."

The Saturn 1 family of rockets has been one of the brighter spots in the U.S. space picture. The 1.5 million-pound thrust rocket has been fired seven times without mishap. The Saturn 1B is an advanced and more powerful model.

Lee said the unmanned earth orbital test of the LEM replacing the third manned mission was scheduled for 1967.

Hold Former Air Force Veteran on Spying Charges

NEW YORK AP -- Robert Glenn Thompson, 29, a husky Air Force veteran, faces a possible death sentence on charges that he sold military secrets to the Soviet Union with the aid of three Russians.

One of the Russians, named as a co - conspirator in the three - count federal indictment Thursday, was ordered expelled from the country by the State Department. He is Boris V. Karpovich, a counselor in the Soviet Embassy in Washington.

Thompson pleaded innocent at his arraignment on charges that he furnished military data to Soviet agents from 1957-1963 and received payments totaling $1,700. U. S. Atty. Joseph E. Hoey commented that payments listed in the indictment were only samples and that there were many more.

Thompson was released in $15,000 bail by U.S. Dist. Judge Walter Bruchhausen in Brooklyn. No trial date was set.

The spy operations were said to have occurred in East and West Berlin and later on Long Island where Thompson lives, and in New York, Detroit, Washington and Great Falls, Mont.

Thompson, a native of Detroit, operates a service station on Long Island, where he also runs an independent fuel oil business. He joined the Air Force in 1952, and served in West Berlin, Labrador and several bases in the United States before his discharge in 1958.

Says State Got $157,477,216. in Revenue in 1964

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Missouri's taxes and fees produced $157,477,216 in general revenue funds during the first six months of the fiscal year, Comptroller Charles D. Trigg said Thursday in a report to Gov. John M. Dalton.

The major portion of the increase lay in the sales-use tax collections which increased from $70,160,768 to $105,688,572. Slight drops were indicated in beer and inheritance tax collections.

Trigg said the cash balance as of the close of business Dec. 31 was $38,677,951, plus $1,941,640 in the process of collection.

The park is destined to continue to grow in popularity, and received its first big boost with Charles Boutin on the state park board. Now that a member from New Madrid county, Lee C. Fine, has been added to the board, the park can expect additional growth.

Unfortunately, due to the low river stage and a severe summer drouth, the lake almost went dry during the past year. This condition has now been corrected. Another well was dug 120 feet deep, and has again raised the lake level to within three feet of its original depth. With the hope of adding a larger pump, the well would be able to supply the lake with as much as 500 gallons per minute, and assure the lake being full at all times.

A new home for the superintendent and his family was built in 1959, and other buildings added, as well as picnic benches and a shelter house. The lake has been stocked with thousands of game fish, to make it a fishing paradise.

The Rev. James Hackney, pastor of the First Baptist Church will be one of the presiding officers at sessions of the annual state-wide evangelistic conference in Raytown, Mo. Jan. 11-13 of the Missouri Baptist Association.

Other Baptist clergymen attending from this area include the Rev. B. G. Corn, Sikeston; the Rev C. E. Roberson, Miner; the Rev. Norman Shepard, Route 1, Bertrand; the Rev. Jimmy Edmondson, Blodgett; the Rev. H. G. Rhea, Route 1, Charleston; the Rev. Richard Lance, Wyatt and the Rev. Edward Marshall, Commerce.

The six-session conference begins Monday afternoon, January 11, at 2:30 p.m. All sessions will be held at the First Baptist Church here, Dr. Arthur H. Stainback is the pastor.

The conference program will be under the direction of Dr. Eugene T. Pratt, Jefferson City, newly elected director of evangelism for the Missouri Baptist Convention. Dr. Pratt, former associate professor of evangelism at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Ft. Worth, Texas, will take over his new duties at this conference.

The meeting will initiate the Convention's accelerated program of evangelism and will be attended by pastors, music directors and laymen from every part of the state. The conference will close at noon on January 13.

Legislature Gets 97 Bills Opening Day

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's Legislature gave itself a running start Thursday on its first day for introduction of bills.

In the House, members tossed in 78 bills and seven proposed constitutional amendments. In the Senate, there were 19 bills and two proposed changes in the constitution.

They ranged all the way from suggestions to solve the state's thorniest problem—legislative reapportionment — to the popular field of increasing welfare payments and boosting salaries of public officials.

One reapportionment proposal would provide for 170 House members, five from each state senatorial district.

Another would set up House districts ranging in population from 27,000 to 33,000. And a third would give each county at least one representative and base additional districts on a complicated formula.

The Senate received a public accommodations bill and the House got bills to:

Set up a conflicts of interest law barring public officials from enjoying private gain because of their positions and also requiring lobbyists to report their activities.

Boost state aid to public schools by an estimated $24.5 million.

Extend school bus transportation to kindergarten youngsters and increase the state aid for transportation.

Require labeling of imported meats.

Set up a Missouri water development fund to finance the storage of water in new federal impoundments for industrial or community use.

RETIRING as superintendent of Big Oak State Park, Narvel Johnson, right, is shown with his wife, and who will retire as of today. He and his wife have spent 18 years at the park, located 12 miles south of East Prairie. The couple will take a long vacation, after which they will return to East Prairie to make their home.

Superintendent at Big Oak State Park Lake Retiring

Two familiar faces at Big Oak State Park, 12 miles south of East Prairie, will no longer greet visitors at the park after today, as Supt. Narvel Johnson, will be retired due to his age, and will be replaced by his brother, Cletus Johnson, East Prairie.

The retiring park superintendent and his wife have been in charge of the park for the past 18 years, and have played an important part in its development. The 1,007-acre park, which was named after tha largest oak tree in the world, one of 13 champions for size known. The champion oak was 334 years old, 143 feet high and 21 feet, four inches in circumference, and contained almost 6,000 feet of lumber. It was felled in 1957 after it was struck by lightning twice. Still living and still the largest tree known is another oak, well over 122 feet high and 17 feet, four inches in circumference.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will leave within a few days for a visit with their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Pepper, Phoenix, Ariz., where they will remain for the rest of the winter. Next spring they will return to East Prairie to make their home. They have another daughter, Mrs. Faustine Hartley, in East Prairie.

The Johnsons took over their duties on Nov. 15, 1946, and built a small home at one edge of the 80-acre forest of giants. This park will never be without a giant, as dozens of large trees are several hundred years old, and will be a mecca for visitors from all over the nation, second only to the giant Redwoods in California.

It must be said the Big Oak Park has climbed greatly in attendance in the past two years, when a 23-acre lake was added, to swell the attendance to more than 50,000 persons last year. The lake was opened July 1, 1963, and more than 3,000 persons were at the lake on the opening day.

Ten Arrested by City Police, one On Four Charges

The city police made ten arrests in the past twenty-four hours. Five of the arrests were for not having city stickers.

Amos Denton, Lee avenue, charged with failure to display city sticker, and given summons to appear in court.

E. M. Schaefer, 1810 Oklahoma, charged with failure to display city sticker, summoned to appear in court.

Francis R. Jenkins, 131 Sixth street, charged with allowing his dog to run loose, and summoned to appear in court.

Dallas Palmer, 810 E. Kathleen, charged with failure to yield right-of-way and involved in an accident, was given summons to appear in court.

Barbara Stinnett, route two, Sikeston, charged with failure to yield right-of-way, and involved in an accident, was given summons to appear in court.

Barbara Stanfield, Sikeston, charged with auto theft, was turned over to Scott County authorities.

Leonard Stanfield, Bernie, charged with drunkenness, was turned over to Scott count authorities.

Jimmie Graham, 807 Wayne, charged with not displaying city sticker, was given summons to appear in city court.

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Reports circulated today that Austin Hill, now deputy secretary of state, will be the new Director of Health and Welfare in the administration of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Charter New Club Of Lions

ORAN-- In a charter night ceremony, more than 150 Lions Club members and their wives were present Thursday night, to welcome the newly formed Oran Lions Club into the 26-D district of Lions International. The new club was sponsored by the Sikeston Lions Club, and the principal speaker was Judge Marshall Craig, past president of the Sikeston and Charleston clubs.

Present were members from clubs at Charleston, Poplar Bluff, Dexter, Bonne Terre, Arcadia Valley, Bell City, Advance, Cape Girardeau, Perryville, Piedmont and a few other cities in the district. Also present to welcome the new club was district governor Harvey P. Halter, Bonne Terre.

The program opened with a call to order by the new club president, Charles Wagoner, and pledge of allegiance led by club director W. G. Mason, and the singing of America led by Verlin Jackson. The invocation was given by Forrest Jackson.

Charles Mitchell, Sikeston Lion was master of ceremonies, and introduced the tail twisters, Haywood Snipes, Poplar Bluff; Hubert Koetting, Perryville, and C. L. Blanton, III, Sikeston. The tail twisters raised more than $100 in fines for the new club, and ranged from prize money to infractions of Lions Club rules, as well as auctioning off a monogrammed tie that brought $7.50. One member was fined a total of $11 for overstepping his authority during the evening.

Dinner music was provided by daughters of three of the Lions members, Misses Derra Goodman, Janice Laub and Lynn Ransdell. Greetings to the club was made by Oran mayor Dr. I. C. Mattingly, and introduction of guests by Edward C. Matthews.

The presentation of the charter was made by the district governor, Harvey Halter, Bonne Terre, and the presentation of a club banner by Charles Mitchell, Sikeston, the dinner bell by the sponsoring chairman Clem Beal, Sikeston, and the Lion money bank by Jim Moran, Charleston.

Speaker Marshall Craig pointed out the duties required by Lions International stating that "all new clubs depend on their own efforts and cannot stand on the accomplishments of other clubs. Both the organization and the individual must be informed and unselfish.

Mrs. Charles Wagoner, president of the Lioness club was introduced and presented her club's officers, and announced plans for their club in behalf of the new Lions Club in Oran.

Two Hurt In Truck Accident

Two East Prairie men were severely injured in a traffic accident Thursday, about 10:30 p.m. at the edge of Charleston on Highway 77.

According to the State Highway Patrol, Larry Burns, 20, of East Prairie driving a truck at a high rate of speed, lost control of the vehicle and it ran off the road. It hit and knocked down a utility pole and then hurtled several hundred feet further before stopping. Burns and a passenger, Paul Wilson, 18, of East Prairie, were thrown out of the truck and Wilson was pinned under it.

Wilson was admitted to the Missouri Delta community Hospital for treatment of a jaw broken in three places and a possible broken back; Burns was admitted for treatment of a possible broken leg, cuts and bruises.

This morning it was reported Burns was in satisfactory condition and Wilson in poor condition.

Troop E reports it had six traffic accidents Thursday no fatalities and three injured.

THREE BIKES STOLEN

Three boys bicycles were reported stolen in the past two days to the police.

TWO EMERGENCY CASES

Two persons were treated and dismissed from the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital Thursday. Steven Ray, East Prairie, fell and cut head and George Andres, Sikeston, steel shaft fell on toe.

Johnson To Seek Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson plans to put minimum wage and unemployment compensation legislation ahead of organized labor's pet project —repeal of the "right-to-work" section of federal law.

But, a high administration source says, repeal of section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act is still of "very real political and economic concern" to Johnson, even though he may not get around to proposing it until next spring.

Section 14B permits states to enact so-called "right-to-work laws that prohibit labor contracts from requiring compulsory union membership.

In his State of the Union message Monday night Johnson promised to ask Congress to repeal 14B. The next day some reports circulated on Capitol Hill that Johnson would not push hard for repeal in the next few months.

This caused some consternation in union circles.

It also has been learned on high authority that Johnson at the same time will seek another change in the Taft-Hartley Act desired by organized labor—especially in the construction trades.

This is the present ban on "situs" picketing which makes unions subject to secondary-boycott penalties when calling a strike at a construction site involving more than one employer.

Although he will not present a separate labor message to Congress, Johnson is considering a number of other changes in labor laws. But high sources indicated there is no change in the administration's opposition to cutting the federal standard work week from 40 to 35 hours — another prime aim of organized labor.

The administration believes it has the votes in Congress to change the two sections of Taft-Hartley without opening up the whole law to extensive revision under pressure of business interests.

Johnson is assigning top priority to bringing another estimated 2 million workers under the Fair Labor Standards Act, and improving the unemployment compensation program.

The first measure would bring hotel, restaurant, laundry and agricultural processing workers under the $1.25 minimum wage and other provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

There is also some consideration in high administration circles of requesting an increase in the $1.25 minimum wage, although probably not to the $2 figure advocated by the AFL-CIO.

THE MISSOURI DELTA Community Hospital will now have two thermatic drainage pumps to be used for emergency patients, a gift from the Sikeston Square and Compass Club.

The check for the purchase of these two items was presented to Harold Jones, hospital administrator and Bill Robison, purchasing agent for the hospital, by County Judge J. E. Childress, Thursday. The money for the new pumps was the proceeds from the annual fish and chicken barbecue of the Square and Compass club, which was under the chairmanship of Mayor Harry E. Dudley and secretary Paul Slinkard.

The new machines will be used on post operative patients requiring continued abdominal drainage. The square and compass club previously presented the hospital with a poison control center.

Two Hurt In Truck Accident

Two East Prairie men were severely injured in a traffic accident Thursday, about 10:30 p.m. at the edge of Charleston on Highway 77.

According to the State Highway Patrol, Larry Burns, 20, of East Prairie driving a truck at a high rate of speed, lost control of the vehicle and it ran off the road. It hit and knocked down a utility pole and then hurtled several hundred feet further before stopping. Burns and a passenger, Paul Wilson, 18, of East Prairie, were thrown out of the truck and Wilson was pinned under it.

Wilson was admitted to the Missouri Delta community Hospital for treatment of a jaw broken in three places and a possible broken back; Burns was admitted for treatment of a possible broken leg, cuts and bruises.

This morning it was reported Burns was in satisfactory condition and Wilson in poor condition.

Troop E reports it had six traffic accidents Thursday no fatalities and three injured.

THREE BIKES STOLEN

Three boys bicycles were reported stolen in the past two days to the police.

TWO EMERGENCY CASES

Two persons were treated and dismissed from the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital Thursday. Steven Ray, East Prairie, fell and cut head and George Andres, Sikeston, steel shaft fell on toe.

Judge Wright Has Cases in New Madrid

NEW MADRID: A lone felon faced Magistrate Erie Wright in the New Madrid county magistrate court this week.

Glen Miller, charged with burglary and larceny, waived his preliminary hearing and was bound over for trial in the circuit court with bond set at $1000.

Driving while intoxicated brought a fine of $120 and a six months' jail sentence to Donald Eugene Chambers. Chambers was granted probation and his driver's license was revoked for one year.

Three persons, Roy Beasley, Bob Sims, and Eddie Beasley, paid a combined total of $37 for petit larceny. Each was also sentenced to serve 30 days in jail, then granted probation for a period of six months.

J. B. Hawkins, charged with disturbing the peace, was fined $25. John Henry Sledge was assessed $10 costs and given a 30 days suspended sentence for operating a motor vehicle while his driver's license was under suspension.

Only one trucker was fined as much as $100 for exceeding legal load limits this week. General Cable paid $320 for an overage of 3750 pounds. Six others were fined lesser amounts.

Other violations were as follows: defective brakes -- James Weaver, $15; careless and imprudent driving -- Louis Edward Brightfield, $45, Don M. Curtis, $15, Roger Taylor, $25, John Henry Sledge, $25, William Bill Young, $15, Ernest Louise Plunkett, $15; improper registration of a motor vehicle -- K. D. Purple Hearts are Awarded to Three U S Navy Nurses

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP -- Three U. S. Navy nurses wounded in the terrorist bomb explosion at the American officers quarters on Christmas Eve were awarded Purple Hearts today. They were the first American women to receive the award in South Viet Nam.

They were hit by glass fragments and thrown to the floor of their room by the explosion but refused medical help until all 60 wounded servicemen had been treated.

They were Lt. Ruth A. Mason, Goshen, N. Y.; Ann D. Reynolds, Dover, N. H.; and Lt. Barbara J. Wooster, Laurel, Md.

Another nurse, Lt. Frances Crumpton of Haleyville, Ala., was injured in the explosion and is eligible for the award. She is at Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines undergoing treatment for ear injuries.

Johnson To Seek Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson plans to put minimum wage and unemployment compensation legislation ahead of organized labor's pet project —repeal of the "right-to-work" section of federal law.

But, a high administration source says, repeal of section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act is still of "very real political and economic concern" to Johnson, even though he may not get around to proposing it until next spring.

Section 14B permits states to enact so-called "right-to-work laws that prohibit labor contracts from requiring compulsory union membership.

In his State of the Union message Monday night Johnson promised to ask Congress to repeal 14B. The next day some reports circulated on Capitol Hill that Johnson would not push hard for repeal in the next few months.

This caused some consternation in union circles.

It also has been learned on high authority that Johnson at the same time will seek another change in the Taft-Hartley Act desired by organized labor—especially in the construction trades.

This is the present ban on "situs" picketing which makes unions subject to secondary-boycott penalties when calling a strike at a construction site involving more than one employer.

Although he will not present a separate labor message to Congress, Johnson is considering a number of other changes in labor laws. But high sources indicated there is no change in the administration's opposition to cutting the federal standard work week from 40 to 35 hours — another prime aim of organized labor.

The administration believes it has the votes in Congress to change the two sections of Taft-Hartley without opening up the whole law to extensive revision under pressure of business interests.

Johnson is assigning top priority to bringing another estimated 2 million workers under the Fair Labor Standards Act, and improving the unemployment compensation program.

The first measure would bring hotel, restaurant, laundry and agricultural processing workers under the $1.25 minimum wage and other provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

There is also some consideration in high administration circles of requesting an increase in the $1.25 minimum wage, although probably not to the $2 figure advocated by the AFL-CIO.

THE MISSOURI DELTA Community Hospital will now have two thermatic drainage pumps to be used for emergency patients, a gift from the Sikeston Square and Compass Club.

The check for the purchase of these two items was presented to Harold Jones, hospital administrator and Bill Robison, purchasing agent for the hospital, by County Judge J. E. Childress, Thursday. The money for the new pumps was the proceeds from the annual fish and chicken barbecue of the Square and Compass club, which was under the chairmanship of Mayor Harry E. Dudley and secretary Paul Slinkard.

The new machines will be used on post operative patients requiring continued abdominal drainage. The square and compass club previously presented the hospital with a poison control center.

The Union labor program for 1965 calls for the repeal of the section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act, which, if passed by Congress and signed by the President, would knock out the 20 state Right to Work laws now in effect. We reproduce below for your edification and education that which we are speaking about.

TEXT OF SECTION 14(b)

TAFT-HARTLEY ACT

Nothing in this Act shall be construed as authorizing the execution or application of agreements requiring membership in a labor organization as a condition of employment in any State or Territory in which such execution or application is prohibited by State or Territorial law.

The 20 state Right to Work laws now in effect all say essentially the same thing. About the only difference between them is that some devote more detail than other to defining the basic terms and to enforcement procedures. Here are the texts of typical Right to Work laws:

FLORIDA

(Amendment to Section XII of Florida Constitution, approved Nov. 7, 1944)

The right of persons to work shall not be denied or abridged on account of membership or non-membership in any labor union, or labor organization; provided, that this clause shall not be construed to deny or abridge the right of employees by and through a labor organization or labor union to bargain collectively with their employer.

KANSAS

(Amendment to Kansas Constitution, passed by referendum, Nov. 4, 1958)

Section 12. No person shall be denied the opportunity to obtain or retain employment because of membership or non-membership in any labor organization, nor shall the State, or any subdivision thereof or any individual, corporation, or any kind of association enter into any agreement, written or oral, which excludes any person from employment or continuation of employment because of membership or non-membership in any labor organization.

TEXAS

(Article 5207A, approved April 8, 1947, by Texas Legislature)

Section 1. The inherent right of a person to work and bargain freely with his employer, individually or collectively, for terms and conditions of his employment shall not be denied or infringed by law, or by any organization of whatever nature.

Section 2. No person shall be denied employment on account of membership or non-membership in a labor union.

Section 3. Any contract which requires or prescribes that employees or applicants for employment in order to work for an employer shall or shall not be or remain members of a labor union, shall be null and void and against public policy. The provisions of this Section shall not apply to any contract or contracts heretofore executed but shall apply to any renewal or extension of any existing contract and to any new agreement or contract executed after the effective date of this Act.

Section 4. Definitions. The term "labor union" as used in this Act shall mean every association, group, union, lodge, local, branch or subordinate organization of any union of working men, incorporated or unincorporated, organized and existing for the purpose of protecting themselves and improving their working conditions, wages, or employment relationships in any manner, but shall not include associations or organizations not commonly regarded as labor unions.

But by her men alone.

THE ARMY GOES HOME

The battle-hardened veterans of the Revolution were going home.

The small knots of men, in groups of three, five and ten, trudged in all directions. Wherever they went, the countryside gratefully opened its home to these returning warriors and gave them food and warmth.

In these hospitable shelters, the furloughed soldiers talked of April 19, 1783 as a day to go down in history. Hostilities formally ended that day, and General Washington had granted furloughs to most of his army the next day. Many of the soldiers guessed correctly that the furlough was in reality a full discharge, because the army would soon be disbanded.

As they relived the skirmishes of Lexington and Concord, and the battles of Monmouth, Saratoga, Yorktown and Breed's Hill (why was it being called the Battle of Bunker Hill when they had actually fought on Breed's Hill? It was a curious thing), they were warmed by the hearths of the houses which had been opened to them. But the hearths provoked a question of anguish for many: would their homes be patches of fire-blackened land and burned timber when they returned?

On December 4, 1783, General Washington also thought of home as he boarded a barge at the South Ferry in New York. He would go to Mt. Vernon, but only after trips to Philadelphia to detail his expenses, and to Annapolis to resign his command.

GENERAL WASHINGTON HURRIES TO MT. VERNON

Washington's expenses since the day he had taken command, $64,315, did not wholly reveal his dedication as a patriot. He also refused to accept pay for his personal services.

Before an audience in Annapolis, the General relinquished his command.

It was ironic that General Miffin, who had conspired to damage confidence in General Washington during the hopeless, cruel winter in Valley Forge, should say:

"You retire from the theatre of action with the blessings of your fellow-citizens, but the glory of your virtues will not terminate with your military command; it will continue to animate remotest ages."

Washington hurried to Mt. Vernon, his beautiful home on the Potomac. He was ready for the warmth of home life again, truly believing that he was through with public life. He expressed his yearnings with eloquence when he said:

"I have not only retired from all public employments, but I am retiring within myself, and shall be able to view the solitary walk and tread the paths of private life with heartfelt satisfaction. Envious of none, I am determined to be pleased with all; and this, my dear friend, being the order of my march, I will move gently down the stream of life until I sleep with my fathers."

NOW, IF I WERE COACH. . . .

In between our work, our extra-curricular activities and such distractions as politics, an election and constant international crises, quite a few of us found time this fall to attend a college football game or two.

And mind you, this was for college football only. It doesn't include the millions of other hardy souls who go to professional football games and keep right on going far into the winter in weather that would keep an Eskimo inside his igloo.

There is a simple lesson to be learned anew from this all-time high in gridiron popularity - five per cent greater than last year.

It is this: Give the people something they want, and they'll take it from there.

Football is action. It is drama. It is excitement and pageantry. It appeals to both sexes and to all ages. It is conflict without horror or tragedy. It is also excellent emotional therapy, during the game and after.

If our team wins, we feel wonderful. If it loses -- well, who can be happier in a melancholy way than a Monday morning quarterback replaying the game and giving the coach, the players and everyone within earshot the benefit of his thinking?

If football did nothing more than this, the contribution it would make to personal satisfaction would be invaluable.

Have you heard the latest in income tax proposals?

It's that people be paid NOT to pay income taxes!

Don't laugh. This may be for real. It's reported to be under consideration by a government tax force in Washington.

Here's how it would work.

Mr. Glomp makes $2,500 a year. He has a wife and four children.

He can, under the new proposal, forget about paying an income tax, since the plan sets up an automatic $3,000 tax exemption.

Mr. Glomp can do more than forget about paying an income tax. He can claim exemption of $600 for each member of his family.

Six times $600 equals $3,600.

On top of this, he also can claim a minimum standard deduction of $800.

A total exemption of $4,400.

But remember - Mr. Glomp has earned only $2,500 during the year. What about that?

Why, under the proposed plan the government would pay Mr. Glomp for not having earned as much income as the total of the exemptions he could have claimed had he earned enough to pay an income tax, which he hadn't.

It would pay him 15 per cent -- the 1965 rate for an equivalent amount of taxable income -- of the $1,900 difference between actual income and total exemption.

This would come to $285.

So Mr. Glomp would be handed a government check for $285 for not having had to pay any income tax.

Simple, eh?

You say such a plan is fantastic -- that it could never happen?

U.S. BEEF FOR EUROPE

A presidential mission recently reported to President Johnson that there is a potential market for U.S. beef in western Europe. And the wants of that market will be met -- if a campaign being conducted by the Foreign Agricultural Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the American Meat Institute attains the success which is anticipated.

Secretary of Agriculture Freeman has designated the Institute -- the national organization of the packers -- to carry on both long-range and short-term promotions to stimulate the commercial sale of beef and other meat products in western Europe and the United Kingdom. The project will be financed by the Institute and market development funds which are available to help develop new outlets for U.S. agricultural products. It will be concerned with the development of beef trade through normal commercial channels. No government sales or subsidies are planned or expected.

Beef trade between this country and Europe has been virtually nonexistent in recent years. The new campaign is designed to change that. The time, as Secretary Freeman says, is ripe. In his words, "Beef particularly is in short supply in Europe, prices have been rising, and prosperous consumers want more beef. We have the supplies to sell them . . ."

All concerned will gain from this -- the producers, who have been hard-pressed because of oversupply; the processors and distributors; and the European consumers who want more beef. It's the kind of cooperative activity that has universal good results.

FOOD - HOOKED

The bride in an effort to impress her husband, took special pains with her cooking. She took to flavoring her foods with generous portions of liquor. She would saturate her beef ragout with red wine, pour sherry all over the chicken and douse her cakes with rum. For a month the husband fairly gorged himself on this fare. Then one day he broke the news.

Thereafter, gas was used by both sides in the war, but during World War II, none of the major warring powers used gas extensively.

Inside Labor

By VICTOR RIESEL

Four Chinese Communist Agents Operate Freely Inside U. S.

UNITED NATIONS: -- Diplomatic enemies of the U. S. have no difficulty contacting Communist China's agencies in New York -- nor in obtaining mainland Communist Chinese literature and printed propaganda for use at strategic moments.

There are at least three official Peking foreign agents operating in New York within walking distance of the UN. There is still another Mao-ist front functioning in San Francisco.

These "People's Republic of China" agencies pour considerable revolutionary literature into the U. S. from these fronts on each coast. Especially effective are appeals to the youth which have resulted in the launching of Mao-ist street action groups in the past two years.

What makes all this most ironic is the fact that the Chinese Communist agencies can operate in the U. S. quite legally so long as they file under the Foreign Agents Registration Act.

This is permitted in the U. S. but the Peking government does not reciprocate. Nor does its post office permit U. S. literature to be mailed into the mainland. Possession of American literature, except for official use, is punishable by death.

China Books and Periodicals run by Henry H. Noyes, 292 Gough Street, San Francisco.

Imported Publications and Products, 1 Union Square, New York, N. Y.

This is a book, periodical and subscription agency. Its foreign principals are Guozi Shudian, Peking; and The China Welfare Institute, Shanghai.

Phillip Frankfeld, World Books, 747 Broadway, New York, N. Y. This is a purchasing, selling and subscription agency. Frankfeld's foreign principal is Guozi Shudian, Peking.

The final agency, or agent, will stir memories to those who have covered labor for several decades. He is Edwin S. Smith, 24 West 45th Street, New York, N. Y. Smith once was on the National Labor Relations Board and many anti-Communists complained that they suffered at his hands.

The major outlets for Chinese Communist propaganda in this country are China Books and Periodicals, Imported Publications and Products, and World Books. Among the publications flooding the U. S. are a monthly magazine, China Reconstructs; a weekly news magazine, Peking Review; a magazine called China Pictoral; another magazine for young people called Evergreen, and a long series of booklets on political matters as well as politically orientated novels.

Much of this literature hammers away at the U. S. position in South Viet Nam. Thus the Peking government is able to get its propaganda over right in the heartland of the U. S. Some of the appeals are catching on. Young people have demonstrated against war since the first slingshot was invented. This is the purpose of the Chinese mainland literature -- to stir youthful action groups into "peace" demonstrations on the big city streets.

Then the news reports and the pictures of the youthful demonstrators being hauled off by the police, or herded behind wooden horses, or tangling with the authorities will be shown in Asia to prove that the youth of America are opposed to holding actions in Asia.

The Chinese Communist literature also camouflaged the Peking government's production of an atomic bomb. The material distributed here attacked the Soviets for signing the test ban without first insisting on the destruction of all nuclear weapons.

A survey of the three New York based Chinese Communist foreign agents headquarters revealed that there is a steady stream of young people visiting them. They purchase the literature in lots and bring in lists of subscriptions.

There is also a goodly number of U. N. diplomats who use the headquarters to pick up the Chinese Communist periodicals to catch the latest nuance of the party line. These very same members of the U. N. missions of the antagonistic Asian-North African bloc have been noted in headquarters of the Mao-ist youth organizations who boast of their militant street action.

At the very least, the Chinese Communists can't complain that they don't enjoy freedom of speech inside the land they vow almost daily to destroy.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON -- Gaunt, gray Speaker John McCormack blinked a bit when 86 congressmen stood up on the floor of the House to demand a roll-call vote on seating the five Mississippi congressmen.

He started counting them carefully at first, then gave up and conceded there were enough standing to force the roll-call which most of the House didn't want.

Behind the surprise roll call was some backstage preparation which the Speaker didn't know about. There was also growing sentiment to bar Southern congressmen whose states do not permit Negro voting.

This has concerned many Southern congressmen. The final roll-call vote of 148 congressmen against seating the Mississippi delegation was over one-third of the House and much greater than expected. To some southerners it indicated that two years hence other southern states would also have trouble getting their representatives seated unless voting requirements are revised.

It was easy to see why most congressmen didn't want a roll-call vote. For it showed such avowed champions of Civil Rights as Manny Cellar of Brooklyn, author of the Civil Rights Bill, voting against the Negroes of Mississippi.

Other Brooklynite Civil-Rights advocates who voted to seat the Mississippi congressmen were Gene Keogh, friend of Dictator Franco; Abe Multer, friend of transit Czar Roy Chalk; Edna Kelly, John Rooney, Hugh Carey, and John M. Murphy. All voted in effect against the Civil Rights position which they have taken in the past, thereby demonstrating the alliance between big city machines and the conservative south when it comes to personal back scratching.

Another big city ally of Mississippi was Jim Delaney of Queens, the friend of Cardinal Spellman who for three years has worked with Mississippi's Bill Colmer inside the Rules Committee to block aid to education.

--BEHIND-THE-SCENES-BYPLAY--

The backstage byplay which forced the Brooklynites and others to be counted actually began before Christmas when Rep. William Fitts Ryan of Manhattan got on the long-distance telephone to sixteen other congressmen and organized a small nucleus to oppose seating the Mississippians.

Next move came last Saturday, when Rep. John Blatnik, Minn., head of the Democratic Study Group urged other Democrats to attend a private Sunday meeting called by Ryan. Forty-five turned up for this meeting, and most of those present volunteered to line up others for the showdown next day.

Most active in rounding up other congressmen were Charles Vanik, Ohio; Edith Green, Ore., Jimmy Roosevelt, Don Edwards and Phillip Burton, Calif.; Joseph Resnick, the new congressman from FDR's home in Duchess County, N. Y.; Charles Diggs and John Conyers, Jr., Mich.; and Emilio Daddario, Conn.

Shortly before the vote, three Republicans, Ogden Reid and Seymour Halpern, N. Y., with Charles Mathias, Md., issued a joint statement opposing the seating of the Mississippians.

Meanwhile Ryan conferred with Democratic leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma who told him frankly that the full weight of the Johnson Administration leadership would be thrown against him and in favor of the Mississippians.

"The Speaker has asked me to introduce a motion to seat the Mississippi delegation, and as majority leader I'm going to do it," he said.

Knowing this was coming, Ryan had spent the previous evening studying the House rules, while Jimmy Roosevelt and Edith Green had coached several younger congressmen to ask questions from the floor which would educate the entire House on the fast-moving, complicated House procedure. Therefore when Albert moved to seat the Mississippi delegation, Ryan countermoved. Albert then moved a vote on the previous question. Ryan then countermoved with a demand for a roll-call vote on the previous question.

This was the backstage preparation which for the first time in one hundred years put more than one-third of the House on record against the seating of congressmen from a southern state because it denied voting rights to Negroes.

--MERRY-GO-ROUND--

President Johnson's speech writers were still frantically patching up his State of the Union Address up to noon on the day he delivered it. . .The suggestion that the President make his appearance before Congress at night, when more people could watch him on television, came from White House aide Bill Moyers. He stumbled upon the idea while he was thumbing through past State of the Union messages. He discovered one that had been delivered at 9 p.m. by FDR. . . Soundings in the south indicate that most school districts will go ahead with integration plans rather than forfeit their federal benefits under the new Civil Rights Act. Southern school boards figure the Supreme Court will force them to integrate sooner or later anyway, so they may as well comply with the new law before they lose any federal money. . .However, rumblings have been heard from a few school districts in Mississippi, Alabama, and Louisiana that they intend to make a last-ditch defiant stand. Some will give up federal aid rather than accept desegregation. . .Of the 2,225 school districts in the south, 600 have already proceeded with voluntary integration. . .The Fish and Wildlife Service has noted that many birds are settling down for the winter farther north than they usually remain. This could be the sign of a mild winter. . .The Internal Revenue Service is now granting tax depreciation, believe it or not, on air. An unpublicized ruling recognizes that garbage dump operators are entitled to tax depreciation on air space when they excavate for a dump.

NEW YORK (AP) — I am about ready to plunge into the stock market.

Well, maybe not exactly plunge — but I am considering at least dabbling my toes in Wall Street. The trouble is, those toes are attached to the coldest feet this side of Alaska.

For years I've been reading educational articles dealing with the ins and outs of investing. But I'm afraid that when I'm in I'll wish I were out.

Still, I do think I'll crack open my nest egg just enough to purchase one share of stock. Then, on all those questionnaires, instead of admitting my occupation is "housewife," I can grandly write "financier."

If I ever get rich I'll owe my wealth to the wealth of knowledge I accumulate by reading the business pages of the newspapers every day.

My favorite literature is the advice service, which I find even more fascinating than the advice to the lovelorn columns.

The information dispensers, with a disdain for softening the blows equalled only by drama critics, never hesitate to give a forthright opinion on any stock asked about.

In horrified tones they urge an inquiring reader to get rid of his shares of Amalgamated Canine Catering Co., because it rapidly is going to the dogs.

On the other hand, they can make a questioner bask in the warmth of their approval if they like his choices.

I am still waiting for the soothsayers to come forth with the name of the stock I am looking for: one that sells for $20 a share, pays yearly dividends of $5 a month, and is guaranteed to double in value every other year.

Since this information has not yet appeared in print, my next best bet is to buy a share of American Telephone & Telegraph. Its future is secure as long as my daughter's voice holds out.

The Union labor program for 1965 calls for the repeal of the section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act, which, if passed by Congress and signed by the President, would knock out the 20 state Right to Work laws now in effect. We reproduce below for your edification and education that which we are speaking about.

TEXT OF SECTION 14(b)

TAFT-HARTLEY ACT

Nothing in this Act shall be construed as authorizing the execution or application of agreements requiring membership in a labor organization as a condition of employment in any State or Territory in which such execution or application is prohibited by State or Territorial law.

The 20 state Right to Work laws now in effect all say essentially the same thing. About the only difference between them is that some devote more detail than other to defining the basic terms and to enforcement procedures. Here are the texts of typical Right to Work laws:

FLORIDA

(Amendment to Section XII of Florida Constitution, approved Nov. 7, 1944)

The right of persons to work shall not be denied or abridged on account of membership or non-membership in any labor union, or labor organization; provided, that this clause shall not be construed to deny or abridge the right of employees by and through a labor organization or labor union to bargain collectively with their employer.

KANSAS

(Amendment to Kansas Constitution, passed by referendum, Nov. 4, 1958)

Section 12. No person shall be denied the opportunity to obtain or retain employment because of membership or non-membership in any labor organization, nor shall the State, or any subdivision thereof or any individual, corporation, or any kind of association enter into any agreement, written or oral, which excludes any person from employment or continuation of employment because of membership or non-membership in any labor organization.

TEXAS

(Article 5207A, approved April 8, 1947, by Texas Legislature)

Section 1. The inherent right of a person to work and bargain freely with his employer, individually or collectively, for terms and conditions of his employment shall not be denied or infringed by law, or by any organization of whatever nature.

Section 2. No person shall be denied employment on account of membership or non-membership in a labor union.

Section 3. Any contract which requires or prescribes that employees or applicants for employment in order to work for an employer shall or shall not be or remain members of a labor union, shall be null and void and against public policy. The provisions of this Section shall not apply to any contract or contracts heretofore executed but shall apply to any renewal or extension of any existing contract and to any new agreement or contract executed after the effective date of this Act.

Section 4. Definitions. The term "labor union" as used in this Act shall mean every association, group, union, lodge, local, branch or subordinate organization of any union of working men, incorporated or unincorporated, organized and existing for the purpose of protecting themselves and improving their working conditions, wages, or employment relationships in any manner, but shall not include associations or organizations not commonly regarded as labor unions.

THE ARMY GOES HOME

The battle-hardened veterans of the Revolution were going home.

The small knots of men, in groups of three, five and ten, trudged in all directions. Wherever they went, the countryside gratefully opened its home to these returning warriors and gave them food and warmth.

In these hospitable shelters, the furloughed soldiers talked of April 19, 1783 as a day to go down in history. Hostilities formally ended that day, and General Washington had granted furloughs to most of his army the next day. Many of the soldiers guessed correctly that the furlough was in reality a full discharge, because the army would soon be disbanded.

As they relived the skirmishes of Lexington and Concord, and the battles of Monmouth, Saratoga, Yorktown and Breed's Hill (why was it being called the Battle of Bunker Hill when they had actually fought on Breed's Hill? It was a curious thing), they were warmed by the hearths of the houses which had been opened to them. But the hearths provoked a question of anguish for many: would their homes be patches of fire-blackened land and burned timber when they returned?

On December 4, 1783, General Washington also thought of home as he boarded a barge at the South Ferry in New York. He would go to Mt. Vernon, but only after trips to Philadelphia to detail his expenses, and to Annapolis to resign his command.

GENERAL WASHINGTON HURRIES TO MT. VERNON

Washington's expenses since the day he had taken command, $64,315, did not wholly reveal his dedication as a patriot. He also refused to accept pay for his personal services.

It was ironic that General Miffin, who had conspired to damage confidence in General Washington during the hopeless, cruel winter in Valley Forge, should say:

"You retire from the theatre of action with the blessings of your fellow-citizens, but the glory of your virtues will not terminate with your military command; it will continue to animate remotest ages."

Washington hurried to Mt. Vernon, his beautiful home on the Potomac. He was ready for the warmth of home life again, truly believing that he was through with public life. He expressed his yearnings with eloquence when he said:

"I have not only retired from all public employments, but I am retiring within myself, and shall be able to view the solitary walk and tread the paths of private life with heart-felt satisfaction. Envious of none, I am determined to be pleased with all; and this, my dear friend, being the order of my march, I will move gently down the stream of life until I sleep with my fathers."

NOW, IF I WERE COACH. . . .

In between our work, our extra-curricular activities and such distractions as politics, an election and constant international crises, quite a few of us found time this fall to attend a college football game or two.

And mind you, this was for college football only. It doesn't include the millions of other hardy souls who go to professional football games and keep right on going far into the winter in weather that would keep an Eskimo inside his igloo.

There is a simple lesson to be learned anew from this all-time high in gridiron popularity - five per cent greater than last year.

It is this: Give the people something they want, and they'll take it from there.

Football is action. It is drama. It is excitement and pageantry. It appeals to both sexes and to all ages. It is conflict without horror or tragedy. It is also excellent emotional therapy, during the game and after.

If our team wins, we feel wonderful. If it loses -- well, who can be happier in a melancholy way than a Monday morning quarterback replaying the game and giving the coach, the players and everyone within earshot the benefit of his thinking?

If football did nothing more than this, the contribution it would make to personal satisfaction would be invaluable.

Have you heard the latest in income tax proposals?

It's that people be paid NOT to pay income taxes!

Don't laugh. This may be for real. It's reported to be under consideration by a government tax force in Washington.

Here's how it would work. Mr. Glomp makes $2,500 a year. He has a wife and four children.

He can, under the new proposal, forget about paying an income tax, since the plan sets up an automatic $3,000 tax exemption.

Mr. Glomp can do more than forget about paying an income tax. He can claim exemption of $600 for each member of his family.

Six times $600 equals $3,600.

On top of this, he also can claim a minimum standard deduction of $800.

A total exemption of $4,400.

But remember - Mr. Glomp has earned only $2,500 during the year. What about that?

Why, under the proposed plan the government would pay Mr. Glomp for not having earned as much income as the total of the exemptions he could have claimed had he earned enough to pay an income tax, which he hadn't.

It would pay him 15 per cent -- the 1965 rate for an equivalent amount of taxable income -- of the $1,900 difference between actual income and total exemption.

This would come to $285.

So Mr. Glomp would be handed a government check for $285 for not having had to pay any income tax.

Simple, eh?

You say such a plan is fantastic -- that it could never happen?

U.S. BEEF FOR EUROPE

A presidential mission recently reported to President Johnson that there is a potential market for U.S. beef in western Europe. And the wants of that market will be met -- if a campaign being conducted by the Foreign Agricultural Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the American Meat Institute attains the success which is anticipated.

Secretary of Agriculture Freeman has designated the Institute -- the national organization of the packers -- to carry on both long-range and short-term promotions to stimulate the commercial sale of beef and other meat products in western Europe and the United Kingdom. The project will be financed by the Institute and market development funds which are available to help develop new outlets for U.S. agricultural products. It will be concerned with the development of beef trade through normal commercial channels. No government sales or subsidies are planned or expected.

Beef trade between this country and Europe has been virtually nonexistent in recent years. The new campaign is designed to change that. The time, as Secretary Freeman says, is ripe. In his words, "Beef particularly is in short supply in Europe, prices have been rising, and prosperous consumers want more beef. We have the supplies to sell them . . . ."

All concerned will gain from this -- the producers, who have been hard-pressed because of oversupply; the processors and distributors; and the European consumers who want more beef. It's the kind of cooperative activity that has universal good results.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON -- Gaunt, gray Speaker John McCormack blinked a bit when 86 congressmen stood up on the floor of the House to demand a roll-call vote on seating the five Mississippi congressmen.

He started counting them carefully at first, then gave up and conceded there were enough standing to force the roll-call which most of the House didn't want.

Behind the surprise roll call was some backstage preparation which the Speaker didn't know about. There was also growing sentiment to bar Southern congressmen whose states do not permit Negro voting.

This has concerned many Southern congressmen. The final roll-call vote of 148 congressmen against seating the Mississippi delegation was over one-third of the House and much greater than expected. To some southerners it indicated that two years hence other southern states would also have trouble getting their representatives seated unless voting requirements are revised.

It was easy to see why most congressmen didn't want a roll-call vote. For it showed such avowed champions of Civil Rights as Manny Cellar of Brooklyn, author of the Civil Rights Bill, voting against the Negroes of Mississippi.

Other Brooklynite Civil-Rights advocates who voted to seat the Mississippi congressmen were Gene Keogh, friend of Dictator Franco; Abe Multer, friend of transit Czar Roy Chalk; Edna Kelly, John Rooney, Hugh Carey, and John M. Murphy. All voted in effect against the Civil Rights position which they have taken in the past, thereby demonstrating the alliance between big city machines and the conservative south when it comes to personal back scratching.

Another big city ally of Mississippi was Jim Delaney of Queens, the friend of Cardinal Spellman who for three years has worked with Mississippi's Bill Colmer inside the Rules Committee to block aid to education.

--BEHIND-THE-SCENES-BYPLAY--

The backstage byplay which forced the Brooklynites and others to be counted actually began before Christmas when Rep. William Fitts Ryan of Manhattan got on the long-distance telephone to sixteen other congressmen and organized a small nucleus to oppose seating the Mississippians.

Next move came last Saturday, when Rep. John Blatnik, Minn., head of the Democratic Study Group urged other Democrats to attend a private Sunday meeting called by Ryan. Forty-five turned up for this meeting, and most of those present volunteered to line up others for the showdown next day.

Most active in rounding up other congressmen were Charles Vanik, Ohio; Edith Green, Ore., Jimmy Roosevelt, Don Edwards and Phillip Burton, Calif.; Joseph Resnick, the new congressman from FDR's home in Duchess County, N. Y.; Charles Diggs and John Conyers, Jr., Mich.; and Emilio Daddario, Conn.

Shortly before the vote, three Republicans, Ogden Reid and Seymour Halpern, N. Y., with Charles Mathias, Md., issued a joint statement opposing the seating of the Mississippians.

Meanwhile Ryan conferred with Democratic leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma who told him frankly that the full weight of the Johnson Administration leadership would be thrown against him and in favor of the Mississippians.

"The Speaker has asked me to introduce a motion to seat the Mississippi delegation, and as majority leader I'm going to do it," he said.

Knowing this was coming, Ryan had spent the previous evening studying the House rules, while Jimmy Roosevelt and Edith Green had coached several younger congressmen to ask questions from the floor which would educate the entire House on the fast-moving, complicated House procedure. Therefore when Albert moved to seat the Mississippi delegation, Ryan countermoved. Albert then moved a vote on the previous question. Ryan then countermoved with a demand for a roll-call vote on the previous question.

This was the backstage preparation which for the first time in one hundred years put more than one-third of the House on record against the seating of congressmen from a southern state because it denied voting rights to Negroes.

--MERRY-GO-ROUND--

President Johnson's speech writers were still frantically patching up his State of the Union Address up to noon on the day he delivered it. . .The suggestion that the President make his appearance before Congress at night, when more people could watch him on television, came from White House aide Bill Moyers. He stumbled upon the idea while he was thumbing through past State of the Union messages. He discovered one that had been delivered at 9 p.m. by FDR. . . Soundings in the south indicate that most school districts will go ahead with integration plans rather than forfeit their federal benefits under the new Civil Rights Act. Southern school boards figure the Supreme Court will force them to integrate sooner or later anyway, so they may as well comply with the new law before they lose any federal money. . .However, rumblings have been heard from a few school districts in Mississippi, Alabama, and Louisiana that they intend to make a last-ditch defiant stand. Some will give up federal aid rather than accept desegregation. . .Of the 2,225 school districts in the south, 600 have already proceeded with voluntary integration. . .The Fish and Wildlife Service has noted that many birds are settling down for the winter farther north than they usually remain. This could be the sign of a mild winter. . .The Internal Revenue Service is now granting tax depreciation, believe it or not, on air. An unpublicized ruling recognizes that garbage dump operators are entitled to tax depreciation on air space when they excavate for a dump.

Four Chinese Communist Agents Operate Freely Inside U. S.

UNITED NATIONS: -- Diplomatic enemies of the U. S. have no difficulty contacting Communist China's agencies in New York -- nor in obtaining mainland Communist Chinese literature and printed propaganda for use at strategic moments.

There are at least three official Peking foreign agents operating in New York within walking distance of the UN. There is still another Mao-ist front functioning in San Francisco.

These "People's Republic of China" agencies pour considerable revolutionary literature into the U. S. from these fronts on each coast. Especially effective are appeals to the youth which have resulted in the launching of Mao-ist street action groups in the past two years.

What makes all this most ironic is the fact that the Chinese Communist agencies can operate in the U. S. quite legally so long as they file under the Foreign Agents Registration Act.

This is permitted in the U. S. but the Peking government does not reciprocate. Nor does its post office permit U. S. literature to be mailed into the mainland. Possession of American literature, except for official use, is punishable by death.

China Books and Periodicals run by Henry H. Noyes, 292 Gough Street, San Francisco.

Imported Publications and Products, 1 Union Square, New York, N. Y.

This is a book, periodical and subscription agency. Its foreign principals are Guozi Shudian, Peking; and The China Welfare Institute, Shanghai.

The final agency, or agent, will stir memories to those who have covered labor for several decades. He is Edwin S. Smith, 24 West 45th Street, New York, N. Y. Smith once was on the National Labor Relations Board and many anti-Communists complained that they suffered at his hands.

The major outlets for Chinese Communist propaganda in this country are China Books and Periodicals, Imported Publications and Products, and World Books. Among the publications flooding the U. S. are a monthly magazine, China Reconstructs; a weekly news magazine, Peking Review; a magazine called China Pictoral; another magazine for young people called Evergreen, and a long series of booklets on political matters as well as politically orientated novels.

Much of this literature hammers away at the U. S. position in South Viet Nam. Thus the Peking government is able to get its propaganda over right in the heartland of the U. S. Some of the appeals are catching on. Young people have demonstrated against war since the first slingshot was invented. This is the purpose of the Chinese mainland literature -- to stir youthful action groups into "peace" demonstrations on the big city streets.

Then the news reports and the pictures of the youthful demonstrators being hauled off by the police, or herded behind wooden horses, or tangling with the authorities will be shown in Asia to prove that the youth of America are opposed to holding actions in Asia.

The Chinese Communist literature also camouflaged the Peking government's production of an atomic bomb. The material distributed here attacked the Soviets for signing the test ban without first insisting on the destruction of all nuclear weapons.

A survey of the three New York based Chinese Communist foreign agents headquarters revealed that there is a steady stream of young people visiting them. They purchase the literature in lots and bring in lists of subscriptions.

There is also a goodly number of U. N. diplomats who use the headquarters to pick up the Chinese Communist periodicals to catch the latest nuance of the party line. These very same members of the U. N. missions of the antagonistic Asian-North African bloc have been noted in headquarters of the Mao-ist youth organizations who boast of their militant street action.

At the very least, the Chinese Communists can't complain that they don't enjoy freedom of speech inside the land they vow almost daily to destroy.

Donald Phillips Featured in Missionary Rally

Rev. Donald E. Phillips, who has spent eight years in Nigeria, West Africa, will be the featured speaker at a missionary rally at First Assembly, 310 S. Kingshighway, Sikeston, Pastor James E. Smith announces. Living in Africa's most stable republic before and after independence has given the Rev. Mr. Phillips a unique insight into the country and its problems.

As a child the Rev. Mr. Phillips went to Africa with his missionary parents in 1939. His father, the Rev. Mr. Everett L. Phillips, was the first Assemblies of God missionary appointed to Nigeria and was founder of the Bible institute in which his son now teaches. The second generation missionary returned to Nigeria in 1961 under appointment of the Foreign Missions Department of the Assemblies of God with international headquarters in Springfield, Missouri.

An instructor at Central Bible Institute of Nigeria, the Rev. Mr. Phillips teaches 125 students from 22 different tribes on the Umuahia campus. He is also in charge of the campus Book Store. Between school sessions he has supervised Assemblies of God churches in the Abakaliki area of the country and served on the Literature Management Committee which directs literature production and distribution among 55,000,000 Nigerians. He has also held numerous open air evangelistic campaigns and served as national youth director.

In preparation for his missionary service in Africa, the Rev. Mr. Phillips graduated from Central Bible Institute, Springfield, Missouri, and pastored in Bruce, South Dakota. He is currently writing his thesis for a Master of Arts degree to be granted by the Missouri seminary in 1965.

Mrs. Phillips is also a graduate of Central Bible Institute in Springfield, Missouri, and is a specialist in the sign language for the deaf. She introduced the deaf ministry into the curriculum of Central Bible Institute of Nigeria to train Nigerian pastors for ministry among the deaf of their own country. During her next missionary term Mrs. Phillips will also serve as director of the Correspondence Bible School which has 40,000 students enrolled.

Traveling with the Rev. and Mrs. Phillips is their son Bradley who speaks the Nigerian languages Ibo and Ifik fluently. The public is cordially invited to attend the missionary rally which begins at 10:45 a.m.

POPLAR BLUFF--Baskets of white gladioli, enhanced with red ribbon bows, and lighted tapers in candelabra also decorated with red bows, formed the background in the Assembly of God Church in Morehouse on December 18 for the wedding of Miss Margie Findley of Route 2, Essex and James Robert Harbin. The Rev. George Hill performed the double ring ceremony at 8 o'clock that night following wedding music presented by Miss Tera Finklea of Dexter, pianist, and Miss Linda Coffey of Essex, soloist. She sang "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Lord's Prayer".

Paul Findley, brother of the bride, gave her in marriage. She was attired in a floor length white satin and Chantilly lace gown fashioned with a bouffant skirt and fitted lace bodice which came to a point in front and had long tapering sleeves and a high neckline. Her finger-tip length veil of silk illusion was secured to a crown trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a bridal bouquet of white carnations atop a white Bible.

Miss Gail Harbin of Route 4, Sikeston, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and wore a street length red brocade satin dress, matching red hat covered with veiling and carried a nosegay of peppermint carnations.

Candles were lighted by Miss Carol Ruth and Miss Nellene Perry of Morehouse who also wore red brocade satin, street length dresses and wristlets of white dwarf mums. Little Miss Debra Brown of Essex, niece of the bride, was flower girl and was dressed in white organdy with a red scalloped overskirt and red sash. She carried a basket of white dwarf mums.

Mr. Harbin, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Harbin of Route 4, Sikeston, chose Eldon Moore of Morehouse as his best man and rings were carried by Michael Brown of Essex, nephew of the bride. Ushers were Johnny Childers and C. L. Gadberry, both of Sikeston.

Mrs. Findley wore for her daughter's wedding a navy blue dress and Mrs. Harbin, mother of the bridegroom, chose a two piece beige dress. Their corsages were white carnations.

A reception was given in the church immediately after the wedding. The bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth with a border of embroidered red roses. The centerpiece was of white spider mums, flanked by lighted red candles. A three tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, was at one end of the table and a crystal punch service at the opposite end. Serving the guests were Miss Louise Stephens of Dexter and Miss Vera Almond of Bloomfield. Miss Rose Harbin, sister of the bridegroom was at the guest book.

After a honeymoon to an undisclosed destination, Mr. and Mrs. Harbin will be at home in Bloomfield. For travel the bride wore a dark green knit two-piece suit and the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The former Miss Findley is employed in the Stoddard County ASC Office in Bloomfield where she will continue her work. Mr. Harbin is employed by the Missouri State Highway Department in Sikeston.

Out-of-town guests were her brother-in-law and sister, the Rev. and Mrs. Al Ragsdale of Memphis, Tenn.

A YEAR TO REMEMBER—
A BOOK TO TREASURE!

THE WORLD IN 1964

When the world's foremost news gathering agency, The Associated Press, in cooperation with this and other member newspapers, decided to publish a memorable book of the year, it wanted to put out more than just another news annual or almanac.

So it assigned to the task the team of outstanding writers that made an all time best seller of The Torch Is Passed, the story of the Kennedy tragedy.

The results were foreseeable — a volume that captures the excitement and immediacy of a great news year and that relates it to the American newspaper reader. It's a sure bet as a collector's item—something you won't want to miss—and as a solid reference book for student or general reader.

POPLAR BLUFF--Baskets of white gladioli, enhanced with red ribbon bows, and lighted tapers in candelabra also decorated with red bows, formed the background in the Assembly of God Church in Morehouse on December 18 for the wedding of Miss Margie Findley of Route 2, Essex and James Robert Harbin. The Rev. George Hill performed the double ring ceremony at 8 o'clock that night following wedding music presented by Miss Tera Finklea of Dexter, pianist, and Miss Linda Coffey of Essex, soloist. Mrs. Findley wore for her daughter's wedding a navy blue dress and Mrs. Harbin, mother of the bridegroom, chose a two piece beige dress. Their corsages were white carnations.

A reception was given in the church immediately after the wedding. The bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth with a border of embroidered red roses. The centerpiece was of white spider mums, flanked by lighted red candles. A three tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, was at one end of the table and a crystal punch service at the opposite end. Serving the guests were Miss Louise Stephens of Dexter and Miss Vera Almond of Bloomfield. Miss Rose Harbin, sister of the bridegroom was at the guest book.

After a honeymoon to an undisclosed destination, Mr. and Mrs. Harbin will be at home in Bloomfield. For travel the bride wore a dark green knit two-piece suit and the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The former Miss Findley is employed in the Stoddard County ASC Office in Bloomfield where she will continue her work. Mr. Harbin is employed by the Missouri State Highway Department in Sikeston.

Out-of -town guests were her brother-in-law and sister, the Rev. and Mrs. Al Ragsdale of Memphis, Tenn.

A YEAR TO REMEMBER—
A BOOK TO TREASURE!

THE WORLD IN 1964

When the world's foremost news gathering agency, The Associated Press, in cooperation with this and other member newspapers, decided to publish a memorable book of the year, it wanted to put out more than just another news annual or almanac.

So it assigned to the task the team of outstanding writers that made an all time best seller of The Torch Is Passed, the story of the Kennedy tragedy.

The results were foreseeable — a volume that captures the excitement and immediacy of a great news year and that relates it to the American newspaper reader. It's a sure bet as a collector's item—something you won't want to miss—and as a solid reference book for student or general reader.

Cape State Stomps McKendree 85-63

Thal Thrower Hits For 19 To Lead Way

(by Dan Whittle)

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The SEMO State Indians put their total number of victories in the double figures last night by beating McKendree 85-63. This victory gives the Indians a ten and three over-all won-lost record. In conference play they are 2-0.

Cape held McKendree scoreless for five minutes and 38 seconds at the outset and three times the Indians had 26 point leads. Thal Thrower led the way with 19 points.

The Indians first 20 point advantage came when big 6' 7" Jack Becker hit a 10 ft. jumpshot making the score 35-14 with 4:23 left the first half. First half play ended with score 48-22.

Thrower had contributed 14 points to the 26 point bulge of the Indians, Becker followed up with 15.

After the intermission McKendree quickly got their offensive attack underway when Chuck Garrett drilled one from 20 feet out. But the Indians had pulled out front and were not to have their lead vanish as they swapped basket per basket the last half.

Cape's Becker followed Throwers leading 10 points closely with a 17 tally production. Lester Long was McKendrees high scorer with 19.

SEMO State College goes against Northwest Missouri State here Saturday looking for its third straight MIAA victory.

Game time at Houck Field House is 8 p.m. SEMO met the Bearcats a week ago on the Maryville Floor, winning easily by a 96-64 score. The Indians have also won from Northeast Missouri at Kirksville, giving them a clean 2-0 slate in the league, while Northwest Missouri has played only the game with SEMO and stand 0-1.

Coach Charles Parsley has cautioned his team against a let-down against the weaker Bearcats, since an upset loss could put a damper on any hopes for a fifth straight conference title.

"We have to win the games we should win," Parsley said, "so that we can stand a loss or two later against the top teams in the conference."

To win Saturday, SEMO will have to contain 6-5 center Dave Remund, who missed the earlier game with an injury, and forward Bill Yaeger, who scored 23 points in the initial encounter. The Maryville squad was only outscored from the field by one field goal in last Saturday's game, 30-29.

Guard Mike Gross contunues to lead Southeast Missouri in scoring with a 19.4 average, while center Jack Becker follows with 13.3, also leading in rebounding with an 11.5 average. Forward Kermit Meystedt, hampered by a cold for the past week, is third with an 11.5 point average, and is second in rebounding with an average of nine.

South Rates Over North

HONOLULU AP -- The South All-Stars, led by Craig Morton, Gale Sayer and Larry Elkins, rate as slight favorites over the North in the annual Hula Bowl game tonight.

And, the South gained more of an edge Thursday when Len Cassanoga, co - coach of the North, pulled out of the game and flew back to the mainland.

Despite weather forecasts for showers, an all - out passing duel is expected, with California's Morton facing two formidable opponents in Jerry Rhome of Tulsa and Bob Berry of Oregon.

For the first time in its 19-year history, the Hula Bowl will be nationally televised. The game will be video - taped here with the tape flown immediately to Los Angeles for editing and showing Saturday afternoon on the mainland.

NCAA Opens Meeting

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association opens it 59th annual convention today, a convention that is expected to center around the bitter war with the Amateur Athletic Union over control of amateur athletics in this country.

Another major item on the agenda is NCAA concern over premature signing of collegiate athletes by professional football leagues.

The convention proper opens Monday, but the vanguard of some 3,000 delegates was on hand for today's opening session, involving registration and meeting of college track and baseball coaches.

Main issues when the 500-plus voting delegates — mostly athletic directors and faculty representatives—get down to business, involve what to do about the eager-beaver pros, the NCAA-AAU feud, and an academic standard for NCAA-sponsored competiton.

The way will be cleared for action on the premature pro signing of football collegians at a Sunday session of the Committee on College-Professional Relations.

Walter Byers, NCAA executive director, said the NCAA's program against pros' jumping the gun in signing collegians probably will be aimed at a "reasonable course" of action.

Byers said the solution obviously was to convince the pro leagues that player drafts should be conducted after bowl games.

Namath Predicted To Be Biggest Bust Ever

Joe Namath's steel gray eyes flash fire when he is reminded of the derisive remarks of pro football veterans over his fantastic $400,000 contract — and the suggestion that he could prove the game's biggest bust.

Frank Ryan, quarterback of the National League champion Cleveland Browns, commented facetiously that if a rookie quarterback with a bum knee is worth that kind of money, "then I must be worth a million."

Even more bitter words came from Namath's future teammates on the New York Jets of the American League--quarterbacks Dick Wood, Mike Taliaferro and Pete Liske.

"I don't see how anybody coming out of college is worth that much," said Wood. "Sounds impossible," added Taliaferro. "I'd lie if I didn't say I was disappointed," complained Liske.

Dave (Hawk) Hanner, 10-year tackle of the Green Bay Packers, said he didn't believe Namath or any other bonus baby in pro football would be willing to pay the price.

"Pay the price?" Namath blurted today, talking between practice sessions for Saturday's Senior Bowl game. "This guy hasn't spent four years at Alabama or he'd never make a statement like that.

"You don't play four years under Coach Bryant (Paul Bear Bryant, the Alabama coach) without paying the price. You give every gut you have or you don't play."

Namath admitted that he was concerned by the furor raised in pro football over his incredible three-year contract and bonuses, the largest financial outlay ever handed a player.

"I can't blame some of the fellows for being skeptical and even sore, but they should understand the circumstances. They should give me a chance to prove myself before they come down on my head like this."

The 194-pound, 6-foot-2 signal caller with the rifle arm is determined to silence his critics by making good.

"I know they'll be laying for me—it's just natural," he said. "But I'm not scared. I don't run scared any more. I've had all the scare knocked out of me.

"I know pro football is tough, but ability doesn't change. The difference in pro and college football is that the pros are smarter. They have learned more. They are big and smart and good at every position but I figure I can learn, too.

"I will learn, and, if I have my way, I'll play football for 20 years. I love it."

Namath gives the impression of a young man who doesn't frighten easily. Born of Hungarian parents and reared in western Pennsylvania, he looks like a collection of nuts and bolts, tough leather and sheer nerve.

He talks in an almost inaudible whisper—low, every word measured and with an incongrous mixture of modesty and brash confidence.

At times, he appears cocky.

He is quiet but not bashful. On the campus at Tuscaloosa, he may turn up one day wearing a rakish beret and the next day a racy zoot suit. Other students follow suit. When the band strikes up a jazzy tune, Joe may do an impromptu twist on the 50-yard line.

They say no man in the game, pro or college, can get the ball away more quickly. With a lightning flick of the wrist, he can heave the ball 30 or 40 yards and place it on a 50-cent piece.

"I had to get the ball off in a hurry or I'd have been smothered," Joe explained, recalling his earlier days.

He was born in Beaver Falls, Pa., a steel center of 30,000 residents 30 miles northwest of Pittsburgh.

"Most of the time we played touch football but sometime we tackled, and I was half the size of the other boys," Namath said.

"When I wasn't playing, I practiced by throwing the ball against the side of the laundry and I broke every window in the place.

"In high school, I was the smallest boy on the team. I only weighed about 140 pounds. I took a real beating."

Although he liked both basketball and baseball better than football, he took up football, he said, in self defense.

"I shined shoes at Gus' Top Hat—which later burned down—for 50 cents a week. Until I got my college scholarship, I was afraid I was going to have to spend my life in the steel mills.

"I dreaded that. I saw my father come home tired and grimy. I hated it. I even thought about entering the Air Force as a career just to keep out of those mills.

"Then I got a chance to play football at Alabama. That seemed like heaven to me. It was hard, but I welcomed it. And that's why I intend to make good as a pro-anything but those steel mills."

Gilmer New Lion Coach

The Lions and millionaire owner William Clay Ford signed Gilmer Thursday to a reported $35,000-a-year contract at a secret meeting at club headquarters.

Gilmer, lured away from the Minnesota Vikings where he was a top aide to coach Norm Van Brocklin for four years, succeeds the resigned coach George Wilson, victim of the Lions' coaching upheaval last month.

The 38-year-old Alabaman, star of the great Crimson Tide teams of the middle and late 1940s and who set records galore for his era, was grabbed up by the Lions less than three weeks after Wilson's resignation following the firing of all his five assistant coaches.

Ford, of whom fans here were critical for his handling of the pre - Christmas coach removals, said he was happy to get Gilmer.

The Lions reportedly received the approval of the Vikings before they made their tender to Gilmer. The clubs were said to have talked together beforehand and the Vikings gave the Lions a go-ahead in their effort.

On one score surely the Lions have added to club luster.

Gilmer, a horse lover with a stable of his own, is apt to wear his 10-gallon hat and cowboy boots out in public as well as on the football sidelines where his getup is a familiar sight to NFL fans.

Detroit won't be new to Gilmer. He played quarterback for the Lions in 1955 and 1956. But in those seasons he was in the shade of the illustrious Bobby Layne and seldom saw any action. The Lions traded him to the Pittsburgh Steelers in 1957.

The Lions signed Gilmer in a private session at club headquarters where he talked with Ford, General Manager Edwin J. Anderson, personnel boss Russ Thomas, and Bud Erickson, assistant general manager.

A Tribute To The Matthews Pirates

What gives with them crazy Matthews Pirates? It was thought pre-seasonally that they would be doing wonders if they could win one ballgame and if they by chance did come up with a winning team, then miracles do happen.

They are at the half-way mark and their record is six wins and four losses and things appear brighter for them now than ever before in the season.

There are several contributing factors that a person can see that have helped the Pirates. One of them is desire. Desire that hasn't been there at Matthews in recent years, particularly last year.

Something else different is that the boy's play the game, not the coach. Their coach, Gary Vaughn, which by the way, this is his rookie year in the coaching field, said, "My boys make mistakes sure, and when one of them does, then it's the other team members that come to the rescue. I'm not out there, they are."

Last, but certainly not least, and something Matthews needed, is sportsmanship. This year their boys are young gentlemen on the floor. They play for the fun that is in basketball and have come to believe that it should be that way and nothing is going to hinder their fun. For example, one of their players has had the habit of losing his temper and his head in the years before that he has played. But this year, it's different. In fact, there was a game that he began to lose control of himself and requested to be benched on his own accord.

Missouri's George Flamani

If George Flamank can just keep doin' what comes naturally against Kansas basketball Jayhawks, Mizzou must be rated a threat to snip K. U.'s winning streak at six straight in Lawrence this Saturday night.

Flamank, a 6-5 Tiger senior, was Mr. Bad News to Kansas twice as Missouri swept a three-game set last winter. In a Big Eight tournament meeting, he drove the lane repeatedly for a 20-point salvo in the Bengals' 63-61 triumph.

Then at Lawrence, George took Gary Garner's missed shot off the rim and poked it home just ahead of the final buzzer for a 59-58 decision.

The Albany, Mo., veteran, whose father captained the Tigers' 1927 football team, recorded a career high of 26 points last week in Missouri's tourney loss to Colorado. He was slowed earlier in the season by an energy-sapping virus --but currently carries a 12.5 average, third on the Mizzou tables.

A Few Reminders

New Year resolutions were probably forgotten by noon New Years day.

The nature of resolutions is universal, we make them, but really don't intend to keep them. Where fishing is concerned, resolutions are seldom needed. Common sense reminders are more appropriate.

From me to you I pass along a few of these little reminders given to me from the Mercury Outboards.

1. Fishing is fun, not work. Relax.
2. Respect property rights. Ask permission.
3. Observe safety rules. Hooks are for fish, not people.
4. Report law violators. That's your fish and game they're swiping.
5. Take the kids along. Fishin's good education.
8. Care for equipment. It's cheaper in the long run.
7. Consume what you catch. Or release them.
8. Avoid litterbugging. Fish don't thrive on empty beer cans.

Thrower had contributed 14 points to the 26 point bulge of the Indians, Becker followed up with 15.

After the intermission McKendree quickly got their offensive attack underway when Chuck Garrett drilled one from 20 feet out. But the Indians had pulled out front and were not to have their lead vanish as they swapped basket per basket the last half.

Cape's Becker followed Throwers leading 10 points closely with a 17 tally production. Lester Long was McKendrees high scorer with 19.

SEMO State College goes against Northwest Missouri State here Saturday looking for its third straight MIAA victory.

Game time at Houck Field House is 8 p.m. SEMO met the Bearcats a week ago on the Maryville Floor, winning easily by a 96-64 score. The Indians have also won from Northeast Missouri at Kirksville, giving them a clean 2-0 slate in the league, while Northwest Missouri has played only the game with SEMO and stand 0-1.

Coach Charles Parsley has cautioned his team against a let-down against the weaker Bearcats, since an upset loss could put a damper on any hopes for a fifth straight conference title.

"We have to win the games we should win," Parsley said, "so that we can stand a loss or two later against the top teams in the conference."

To win Saturday, SEMO will have to contain 6-5 center Dave Remund, who missed the earlier game with an injury, and forward Bill Yaeger, who scored 23 points in the initial encounter. The Maryville squad was only outscored from the field by one field goal in last Saturday's game, 30-29.

Guard Mike Gross contunues to lead Southeast Missouri in scoring with a 19.4 average, while center Jack Becker follows with 13.3, also leading in rebounding with an 11.5 average. Forward Kermit Meystedt, hampered by a cold for the past week, is third with an 11.5 point average, and is second in rebounding with an average of nine.

NCAA Opens Meeting

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association opens it 59th annual convention today, a convention that is expected to center around the bitter war with the Amateur Athletic Union over control of amateur athletics in this country.

Another major item on the agenda is NCAA concern over premature signing of collegiate athletes by professional football leagues.

The convention proper opens Monday, but the vanguard of some 3,000 delegates was on hand for today's opening session involving registration and meeting of college track and baseball coaches.

Main issues when the 500-plus voting delegates — mostly athletic directors and faculty representatives—get down to business, involve what to do about the eager-beaver pros, the NCAA-AAU feud, and an academic standard for NCAA-sponsored competiton.

The way will be cleared for action on the premature pro signing of football collegians at a Sunday session of the Committee on College-Professional Relations.

Walter Byers, NCAA executive director, said the NCAA's program against pros' jumping the gun in signing collegians probably will be aimed at a "reasonable course" of action.

Byers said the solution obviously was to convince the pro leagues that player drafts should be conducted after bowl games.

South Rates Over North

HONOLULU AP -- The South All-Stars, led by Craig Morton, Gale Sayer and Larry Elkins, rate as slight favorites over the North in the annual Hula Bowl game tonight.

And, the South gained more of an edge Thursday when Len Cassanoga, co - coach of the North, pulled out of the game and flew back to the mainland.

Despite weather forecasts for showers, an all - out passing duel is expected, with California's Morton facing two formidable opponents in Jerry Rhome of Tulsa and Bob Berry of Oregon.

For the first time in its 19-year history, the Hula Bowl will be nationally televised. The game will be video - taped here with the tape flown immediately to Los Angeles for editing and showing Saturday afternoon on the mainland.

Namath Predicted To Be Biggest Bust Ever

Joe Namath's steel gray eyes flash fire when he is reminded of the derisive remarks of pro football veterans over his fantastic $400,000 contract — and the suggestion that he could prove the game's biggest bust.

Frank Ryan, quarterback of the National League champion Cleveland Browns, commented facetiously that if a rookie quarterback with a bum knee is worth that kind of money, "then I must be worth a million."

Even more bitter words came from Namath's future teammates on the New York Jets of the American League--quarterbacks Dick Wood, Mike Taliaferro and Pete Liske.

"I don't see how anybody coming out of college is worth that much," said Wood. "Sounds impossible," added Taliaferro. "I'd lie if I didn't say I was disappointed," complained Liske.

Dave (Hawk) Hanner, 10-year tackle of the Green Bay Packers, said he didn't believe Namath or any other bonus baby in pro football would be willing to pay the price.

"Pay the price?" Namath blurted today, talking between practice sessions for Saturday's Senior Bowl game. "This guy hasn't spent four years at Alabama or he'd never make a statement like that.

"You don't play four years under Coach Bryant (Paul Bear Bryant, the Alabama coach) without paying the price. You give every gut you have or you don't play."

Namath admitted that he was concerned by the furor raised in pro football over his incredible three-year contract and bonuses, the largest financial outlay ever handed a player.

"I can't blame some of the fellows for being skeptical and even sore, but they should understand the circumstances. They should give me a chance to prove myself before they come down on my head like this."

The 194-pound, 6-foot-2 signal caller with the rifle arm is determined to silence his critics by making good.

"I know they'll be laying for me—it's just natural," he said. "But I'm not scared. I don't run scared any more. I've had all the scare knocked out of me.

"I know pro football is tough, but ability doesn't change. The difference in pro and college football is that the pros are smarter. They have learned more. They are big and smart and good at every position but I figure I can learn, too.

"I will learn, and, if I have my way, I'll play football for 20 years. I love it."

Namath gives the impression of a young man who doesn't frighten easily. Born of Hungarian parents and reared in western Pennsylvania, he looks like a collection of nuts and bolts, tough leather and sheer nerve.

He talks in an almost inaudible whisper—low, every word measured and with an incongrous mixture of modesty and brash confidence.

At times, he appears cocky.

He is quiet but not bashful. On the campus at Tuscaloosa, he may turn up one day wearing a rakish beret and the next day a racy zoot suit. Other students follow suit. When the band strikes up a jazzy tune, Joe may do an impromptu twist on the 50-yard line.

They say no man in the game, pro or college, can get the ball away more quickly. With a lightning flick of the wrist, he can heave the ball 30 or 40 yards and place it on a 50-cent piece.

"Most of the time we played touch football but sometime we tackled, and I was half the size of the other boys," Namath said.

"When I wasn't playing, I practiced by throwing the ball against the side of the laundry and I broke every window in the place.

"In high school, I was the smallest boy on the team. I only weighed about 140 pounds. I took a real beating."

Although he liked both basketball and baseball better than football, he took up football, he said, in self defense.

"I shined shoes at Gus' Top Hat—which later burned down—for 50 cents a week. Until I got my college scholarship, I was afraid I was going to have to spend my life in the steel mills.

"I dreaded that. I saw my father come home tired and grimy. I hated it. I even thought about entering the Air Force as a career just to keep out of those mills.

"Then I got a chance to play football at Alabama. That seemed like heaven to me. It was hard, but I welcomed it. And that's why I intend to make good as a pro—anything but those steel mills."

Gilmer New Lion Coach

The Lions and millionaire owner William Clay Ford signed Gilmer Thursday to a reported $35,000-a-year contract at a secret meeting at club headquarters.

The 38-year-old Alabaman, star of the great Crimson Tide teams of the middle and late 1940s and who set records galore for his era, was grabbed up by the Lions less than three weeks after Wilson's resignation following the firing of all his five assistant coaches.

Ford, of whom fans here were critical for his handling of the pre - Christmas coach removals, said he was happy to get Gilmer.

The Lions reportedly received the approval of the Vikings before they made their tender to Gilmer. The clubs were said to have talked together beforehand and the Vikings gave the Lions a go-ahead in their effort.

Gilmer, a horse lover with a stable of his own, is apt to wear his 10-gallon hat and cowboy boots out in public as well as on the football sidelines where his getup is a familiar sight to NFL fans.

Detroit won't be new to Gilmer. He played quarterback for the Lions in 1955 and 1956. But in those seasons he was in the shade of the illustrious Bobby Layne and seldom saw any action. The Lions traded him to the Pittsburgh Steelers in 1957.

The Lions signed Gilmer in a private session at club headquarters where he talked with Ford, General Manager Edwin J. Anderson, personnel boss Russ Thomas, and Bud Erickson, assistant general manager.

A Tribute To The Matthews Pirates

What gives with them crazy Matthews Pirates? It was thought pre-seasonally that they would be doing wonders if they could win one ballgame and if they by chance did come up with a winning team, then miracles do happen.

They are at the half-way mark and their record is six wins and four losses and things appear brighter for them now than ever before in the season.

There are several contributing factors that a person can see that have helped the Pirates. One of them is desire. Desire that hasn't been there at Matthews in recent years, particularly last year.

Something else different is that the boy's play the game, not the coach. Their coach, Gary Vaughn, which by the way, this is his rookie year in the coaching field, said, "My boys make mistakes sure, and when one of them does, then it's the other team members that come to the rescue. I'm not out there, they are."

Last, but certainly not least, and something Matthews needed, is sportsmanship. This year their boys are young gentlemen on the floor. They play for the fun that is in basketball and have come to believe that it should be that way and nothing is going to hinder their fun. For example, one of their players has had the habit of losing his temper and his head in the years before that he has played. But this year, it's different. In fact, there was a game that he began to lose control of himself and requested to be benched on his own accord.

Missouri's George Flamank

If George Flamank can just keep doin' what comes naturally against Kansas basketball Jayhawks, Mizzou must be rated a threat to snip K. U.'s winning streak at six straight in Lawrence this Saturday night.

Flamank, a 6-5 Tiger senior, was Mr. Bad News to Kansas twice as Missouri swept a three-game set last winter. In a Big Eight tournament meeting, he drove the lane repeatedly for a 20-point salvo in the Bengals' 63-61 triumph.

Then at Lawrence, George took Gary Garner's missed shot off the rim and poked it home just ahead of the final buzzer for a 59-58 decision.

The Albany, Mo., veteran, whose father captained the Tigers' 1927 football team, recorded a career high of 26 points last week in Missouri's tourney loss to Colorado. He was slowed earlier in the season by an energy-sapping virus --but currently carries a 12.5 average, third on the Mizzou tables.

A Few Reminders

New Year resolutions were probably forgotten by noon New Years day.

The nature of resolutions is universal, we make them, but really don't intend to keep them. Where fishing is concerned, resolutions are seldom needed. Common sense reminders are more appropriate.

From me to you I pass along a few of these little reminders given to me from the Mercury Outboards.

1. Fishing is fun, not work. Relax.
2. Respect property rights. Ask permission.
3. Observe safety rules. Hooks are for fish, not people.
4. Report law violators. That's your fish and game they're swiping.
5. Take the kids along. Fishin's good education.
8. Care for equipment. It's cheaper in the long run.
7. Consume what you catch. Or release them.
8. Avoid litterbugging. Fish don't thrive on empty beer cans.

Presidential Succession And Inability

WASHINGTON, January 7 -- New provisions for quickly transferring the duties and powers of the Presidency in the event of the death or inability of the President, and to assure that the United States is never without a Vice President ready to assume Presidential responsibilities, were proposed today by the Research and Policy Committee of the Committee for Economic Development (CED).

"The urgency of national action to resolve the doubts and uncertainties clouding Presidential succession and inability cannot be overstressed," the CED statement on national policy says. "Failure to correct the deficiencies will subject the nation to risks and hazards that are avoidable. Prompt action is imperative. . .The United States of America must have one person wielding the powers and duties of the Presidency at all times."

To make certain that this condition prevails the Committee offered two major proposals:

(1) - Amending the Constitution to provide that any vacancy in the office of Vice President be filled by giving the President authority to nominate a Vice President subject to approval by joint session of Congress.

(2) - Placing in the hands of the Cabinet authority to decide the beginning of Presidential inability, the Vice President concurring. The ending of inability should also be determined by the Cabinet, with the President confirming.

Through the adoption of these two proposals, the policy statements says, the United States will always have one person -- and only one person-exercising the powers and duties of the Presidency.

The statement was made public by the Research and Policy Committee of CED, of which Theodore O. Yntema, chairman, finance committee, Ford Motor Company, is the chairman. It was prepared by the Committee for Improvement of Management in Government (CIMG) under the chairmanship of Marion B. Folsom, former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare and former Under Secretary of the Treasury.

The Committee for Economic Development is a nonprofit, nonpolitical research and educational organization of 200 business executives and educators who engage in research on major national and international economic problems with the purpose of promoting high employment with stable economic growth.

The CIMG was established in 1963 by the CED Board of Trustees to make continuing studies of the basic issues arising in the management of federal, state, and local government affairs, and to formulate proposals for the improvement of public administration. Its work receives financial support from the Carnegie Corporation and other foundations.

After pointing out the reasons why the Presidency is "the most important job in the world" -- reasons which include Presidential control of "the nuclear trigger" -- the report states that a President's death or serious illness would create the risk of national disaster. Although in 1963 the Presidential powers and duties were quickly assumed (in less than two hours) by the new President, the report warns that there are situations under which a similarly smooth transition would not occur.

"There is no guarantee that virtually uninterrupted exercise of Presidential powers and duties would always be repeated. There are gaps and ambiguities in the Constitutional language concerning vacancy or inability in the Presidential office (Art. II Sec. I, U. S. Constitution)."

The Constitution is not clear about what actually constitutes "inability," who determines when such "inability" exists, and whether it is only the "powers and duties" or the "office" itself that devolve on the Vice President under such circumstances.

The report examines a number of solutions to the succession and inability problem that have been advanced, including the proposed Constitutional amendment approved by the Senate last September. Its proposals differ somewhat from the Senate's and from the recommendations recently made public by the American Bar Association. The CIMG measured the various alternatives for solution against several criteria -- continuity, legitimacy, certainty, stability, speed, simplicity, and preservation of the separation of powers fundamental to the United States Constitutional system--before reaching its own conclusions.

After stressing the need for the quick filling of the post of Vice President when it becomes vacant from any cause, the committee rejects four methods that have been suggested for this purpose: (1) selection of a Vice President by special election; (2) selection by the Electoral College; (3) establishment of a second or legislative Vice President who would automatically become Vice President in case of a vacancy in this office; and (4) selection by Congress.

Instead it calls for amending the Constitution so that any vacancy in the office of Vice President be filled through Presidential nomination with approval by a majority of Senators and Representatives present and voting in a joint session of Congress. The statement says:

"The proposal for nomination of a candidate by the President with approval by one or both Houses of Congress has strongest general support. The restriction of choice to Presidential nominees would insure acceptability to the President. Congressional approval would serve as a check, symbolizing popular participation and establishing legitimacy. . ."

"Those who want the House of Representatives to participate, either separately or in joint session, argue that this would tend to elevate the Vice Presidency above all other executive appointments. Prior approval by both Houses of Congress would strengthen legitimacy. The Senate does not reflect population differences, whereas the Senate and House together duplicate the allocation of electoral votes among the states . . . .

"We suggest that rules of procedure could be adopted making action in joint session more expeditious than with the two Houses voting separately. We are impressed by the fact that a joint session would duplicate electoral vote allocation among the several states."

In discussing the line of succession the CED statement points out that with its provision for keeping the Vice Presidency filled at all times "the further line of Presidential succession loses much of its importance." Although it has never happened, however, it is conceivable that both the Presidency and the Vice Presidency could become vacant simultaneously.

The 1947 succession law (presently in effect) places the Speaker of the House first in line of succession, followed by the President PRO TEMPORE of the Senate, and then members of the Cabinet.

The statement lists several objections to the present law and says "we recommend that the 1886 succession law be restored with the heads of executive departments (the Cabinet) taking their former positions in the line of succession."

The statement devotes much attention to how and under what circumstances Presidential disability shall be determined. The Constitutional provision concerning this problem raises questions on three important points, the statement says: (1) In case of Presidential inability, whether the Vice President assumes "the powers and duties" of the Presidency or the "office" itself; (2 how commencement of Presidential inability is established; and (3) how termination of Presidential inability is decided.

Since "inability" is not defined in the Constitution and Congress "lacks final authority to define Constitutional terms" the statement calls for an amendment to the Constitution to clarify the method of determining "inability."

On the grounds that an attempt to define or amplify the meaning of "inability" would be unduly restrictive, the Committee would leave the term undefined in the Constitution. "Inability," it says, should "continue to be understood to mean any situation in which the President is unable to exercise the powers and duties of his office."

Many suggestions have been made for determining when Presidential inability exists, including the Vice President declaring it on his own authority, use of a special tribunal, and the Cabinet acting on its own authority. The Committee examined each at length and concludes that". . .the beginning of Presidential inability (unless declared by the President himself) be determined by a majority vote of the Cabinet, the Vice President concurring, and that discussions leading to such vote may be initiated by the Vice President or any member of the Cabinet."

The Committee then discusses several suggested methods for determining when inability ends. These include allowing the President alone to decide; agreement by the President and Vice President; in case of disagreement giving the Vice President power of final decision or allowing the President to decide unless opposed by the Cabinet and at least two-thirds of both Houses of Congress; and decision by majority vote of the Cabinet.

The Committee concludes that ". . .the responsibility for determining the ending of Presidential inability (should) be placed on the Cabinet, the President concurring in this decision."

Footnotes of comment, reservation, or dissent are contributed by three trustees of CED: William Benton (who urges abolition of the Vice Presidency and a general election in the case of a President's death), John F. Merriam, and C. Wrede Petersmeyer.

Lee Beal Has Stormy Trip

Mrs. Henrietta Beal, 518 Matthews has received word from her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Beal, that they would arrive in St. Louis Wednesday or Thursday, after a delayed voyage from Ankara, Turkey.

Mr. Beal is assistant consulate general in the state department and for the past two years has served in Ankara. The family was on the way home to Washington D. C., when their ship, the Independence, encountered a heavy storm that covered a 1,000 mile ocean radius and it was delayed in arriving to this country by 40 hours. The large ship was forced to reduce its speed from 40 knots to two knots, when they encountered the storm New Year's eve, and finally reached port Sunday night. Sixteen passengers were injured during the heavy storm.

He will visit in Sikeston for one month, after which the family will return to Washington, where he will attend school for two months, before embarking for Jordan for another two-year assignment. His wife and daughter, Michell, age one and one-half years, will be met in St. Louis by his mother and two brothers, Clem Beal of Sikeston, and William Beal of Cape Girardeau.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

IN HARDEMAN

In Hardeman, among the stream-veined hills,
I'm witness to the drama, pageantry,
And soothing music of the woods that fills
Receptive hearts with new discovery
Of fragrant peace. Like quiet, consoling hands
I feel the dew-hung branches touch my arm;
Laces of emerald and sapphire strands
Are woven through the hills around the farm
And down the road I see a church-crowned hill,
The morning star above a stalwart pine;
I hear a chorister--a whip-poor-will
Rehearsing songs that touch a heart like mine,
In Hardeman, my favorite wondering-place,

Presidential Succession And Inability

WASHINGTON, January 7 -- New provisions for quickly transferring the duties and powers of the Presidency in the event of the death or inability of the President, and to assure that the United States is never without a Vice President ready to assume Presidential responsibilities, were proposed today by the Research and Policy Committee of the Committee for Economic Development (CED).

"The urgency of national action to resolve the doubts and uncertainties clouding Presidential succession and inability cannot be overstressed," the CED statement on national policy says. "Failure to correct the deficiencies will subject the nation to risks and hazards that are avoidable. Prompt action is imperative. . .The United States of America must have one person wielding the powers and duties of the Presidency at all times."

To make certain that this condition prevails the Committee offered two major proposals:

(1) - Amending the Constitution to provide that any vacancy in the office of Vice President be filled by giving the President authority to nominate a Vice President subject to approval by joint session of Congress.

(2) - Placing in the hands of the Cabinet authority to decide the beginning of Presidential inability, the Vice President concurring. The ending of inability should also be determined by the Cabinet, with the President confirming.

Through the adoption of these two proposals, the policy statements says, the United States will always have one person -- and only one person -- exercising the powers and duties of the Presidency.

The statement was made public by the Research and Policy Committee of CED, of which Theodore O. Yntema, chairman, finance committee, Ford Motor Company, is the chairman. It was prepared by the Committee for Improvement of Management in Government (CIMG) under the chairmanship of Marion B. Folsom, former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare and former Under Secretary of the Treasury.

The Committee for Economic Development is a nonprofit, nonpolitical research and educational organization of 200 business executives and educators who engage in research on major national and international economic problems with the purpose of promoting high employment with stable economic growth.

The CIMG was established in 1963 by the CED Board of Trustees to make continuing studies of the basic issues arising in the management of federal, state, and local government affairs, and to formulate proposals for the improvement of public administration. Its work receives financial support from the Carnegie Corporation and other foundations.

After pointing out the reasons why the Presidency is "the most important job in the world" -- reasons which include Presidential control of "the nuclear trigger" -- the report states that a President's death or serious illness would create the risk of national disaster. Although in 1963 the Presidential powers and duties were quickly assumed (in less than two hours) by the new President, the report warns that there are situations under which a similarly smooth transition would not occur.

"There is no guarantee that virtually uninterrupted exercise of Presidential powers and duties would always be repeated. There are gaps and ambiguities in the Constitutional language concerning vacancy or inability in the Presidential office (Art. II Sec. I, U. S. Constitution)."

The Constitution is not clear about what actually constitutes "inability," who determines when such "inability" exists, and whether it is only the "powers and duties" or the "office" itself that devolve on the Vice President under such circumstances.

The report examines a number of solutions to the succession and inability problem that have been advanced, including the proposed Constitutional amendment approved by the Senate last September. Its proposals differ somewhat from the Senate's and from the recommendations recently made public by the American Bar Association. The CIMG measured the various alternatives for solution against several criteria -- continuity, legitimacy, certainty, stability, speed, simplicity, and preservation of the separation of powers fundamental to the United States Constitutional system -- before reaching its own conclusions.

After stressing the need for the quick filling of the post of Vice President when it becomes vacant from any cause, the committee rejects four methods that have been suggested for this purpose: (1) selection of a Vice President by special election; (2) selection by the Electoral College; (3) establishment of a second or legislative Vice President who would automatically become Vice President in case of a vacancy in this office; and (4) selection by Congress.

Instead it calls for amending the Constitution so that any vacancy in the office of Vice President be filled through Presidential nomination with approval by a majority of Senators and Representatives present and voting in a joint session of Congress. The statement says:

"The proposal for nomination of a candidate by the President with approval by one or both Houses of Congress has strongest general support. The restriction of choice to Presidential nominees would insure acceptability to the President. Congressional approval would serve as a check, symbolizing popular participation and establishing legitimacy. . ."

"Those who want the House of Representatives to participate, either separately or in joint session, argue that this would tend to elevate the Vice Presidency above all other executive appointments. Prior approval by both Houses of Congress would strengthen legitimacy. The Senate does not reflect population differences, whereas the Senate and House together duplicate the allocation of electoral votes among the states . . . .

"We suggest that rules of procedure could be adopted making action in joint session more expeditious than with the two Houses voting separately. We are impressed by the fact that a joint session would duplicate electoral vote allocation among the several states."

In discussing the line of succession the CED statement points out that with its provision for keeping the Vice Presidency filled at all times "the further line of Presidential succession loses much of its importance." Although it has never happened, however, it is conceivable that both the Presidency and the Vice Presidency could become vacant simultaneously.

The 1947 succession law (presently in effect) places the Speaker of the House first in line of succession, followed by the President PRO TEMPORE of the Senate, and then members of the Cabinet.

The statement lists several objections to the present law and says "we recommend that the 1886 succession law be restored with the heads of executive departments (the Cabinet) taking their former positions in the line of succession."

The statement devotes much attention to how and under what circumstances Presidential disability shall be determined. The Constitutional provision concerning this problem raises questions on three important points, the statement says: (1) In case of Presidential inability, whether the Vice President assumes "the powers and duties" of the Presidency or the "office" itself; (2 how commencement of Presidential inability is established; and (3) how termination of Presidential inability is decided.

Since "inability" is not defined in the Constitution and Congress "lacks final authority to define Constitutional terms" the statement calls for an amendment to the Constitution to clarify the method of determining "inability."

On the grounds that an attempt to define or amplify the meaning of "inability" would be unduly restrictive, the Committee would leave the term undefined in the Constitution. "Inability," it says, should "continue to be understood to mean any situation in which the President is unable to exercise the powers and duties of his office."

Many suggestions have been made for determining when Presidential inability exists, including the Vice President declaring it on his own authority, use of a special tribunal, and the Cabinet acting on its own authority. The Committee examined each at length and concludes that". . .the beginning of Presidential inability (unless declared by the President himself) be determined by a majority vote of the Cabinet, the Vice President concurring, and that discussions leading to such vote may be initiated by the Vice President or any member of the Cabinet."

The Committee then discusses several suggested methods for determining when inability ends. These include allowing the President alone to decide; agreement by the President and Vice President; in case of disagreement giving the Vice President power of final decision or allowing the President to decide unless opposed by the Cabinet and at least two-thirds of both Houses of Congress; and decision by majority vote of the Cabinet.

The Committee concludes that ". . .the responsibility for determining the ending of Presidential inability (should) be placed on the Cabinet, the President concurring in this decision."

Footnotes of comment, reservation, or dissent are contributed by three trustees of CED: William Benton (who urges abolition of the Vice Presidency and a general election in the case of a President's death), John F. Merriam, and C. Wrede Petersmeyer.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

IN HARDEMAN

In Hardeman, among the streamveined hills,
I'm witness to the drama, pageantry,
And soothing music of the woods that fills
Receptive hearts with new discovery
Of fragrant peace. Like quiet, consoling hands
I feel the dew-hung branches touch my arm;
Laces of emerald and sapphire strands
And down the road I see a church-crowned hill,
The morning star above a stalwart pine;
I hear a chorister--a whippoor-will
Rehearsing songs that touch a heart like mine,
In Hardeman, my favorite wondering-place,

Lee Beal Has Stormy Trip

Mrs. Henrietta Beal, 518 Matthews has received word from her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Beal, that they would arrive in St. Louis Wednesday or Thursday, after a delayed voyage from Ankara, Turkey.

Mr. Beal is assistant consulate general in the state department and for the past two years has served in Ankara. The family was on the way home to Washington D. C., when their ship, the Independence, encountered a heavy storm that covered a 1,000 mile ocean radius and it was delayed in arriving to this country by 40 hours. The large ship was forced to reduce its speed from 40 knots to two knots, when they encountered the storm New Year's eve, and finally reached port Sunday night. Sixteen passengers were injured during the heavy storm.

He will visit in Sikeston for one month, after which the family will return to Washington, where he will attend school for two months, before embarking for Jordan for another two-year assignment. His wife and daughter, Michell, age one and one-half years, will be met in St. Louis by his mother and two brothers, Clem Beal of Sikeston, and William Beal of Cape Girardeau.

Senator Jennings Randolph to Speak at AGC Meeting

JEFFERSON CITY - Featured at the 39th Annual Meeting of the Associated General Contractors of Missouri will be an outline of state highway and federal construction in the state during 1965. In addition, the construction outlook after 1972 will be forecast by Sen. Jennings Randolph (D-W. Va.), chairman of the Senate subcommittee on roads.

Scheduled for Jan. 13 and 14 at the Hotel Muehlebach in Kansas City, the convention program will include a talk by Marvin J. Snider, chief engineer, Missouri State Highway Department, who will discuss Missouri's highway program for the coming year. On the same program, will be Lt. Col. C. R. Supplee, deputy district engineer, Kansas City District of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers; and Lt. Col. Harry B. Barke, deputy district engineer, St. Louis District of the Corps of Engineers. The two officers will outline the Corps program for Missouri for 1965.

Sen. Randolph, who is also a member of the Senate committee on public works, will speak on "Trends in Transportation After 1972," at 2:15 p.m., Jan. 14, in the Colonial Ballroom of the hotel. The year 1972 is the date when the present Interstate Highway Program expires.

Included on the convention program will be the presentation of the association's annual safety awards. In addition, the group's "E.C.I. Wagner Award" will be presented to two contractors who have compiled outstanding safety records during the last five years and who have made outstanding contributions to the cause of construction safety.

The names of the Wagner Award winners will be withheld until the presentation by E.C.I. Wagner, of Jefferson City.

The annual safety awards will be presented by R. P. Stephens, chairman of the Accident Prevention Committee of the Missouri AGC.

Among other activities at the annual meeting will be a special program on Workmen's Compensation and Unemployment Compensation featuring Seldon E. Brown, St. Louis, Director of Insurance and Workmen's Compensation, Associated Industries of Missouri; and E.E. Diemer, St. Louis, Director of Research of the Associated Industries.

Also included in the convention functions will be the installation of officers of the association, presentation of 25-year membership certificates to Clark Construction Co., St. Joseph, and the W. J. Menefee Construction Co., Sedalia.

. . . Hire Reddy Kilowatt®!

This 'round-the-clock servant is on the job 24 hours a day every day of the year, ready to do your work at the flip of a switch! Most folks keep him pretty busy because, besides being willing and eager to work, his pay is just about the lowest of any servant, anywhere!

Look at YOUR Electric Servant bill next time. Count the jobs Reddy does! Then figure how little each job cost you! Reddy really is the biggest bargain in the family budget.

Race problem?

Men of conscience feel our nation's problems in their souls. And our souls must be the starting place for our recognition of the inalienable rights of man.

If you live in an area where, because of tradition, acceptance of human dignity for all is undiscovered—seek to discover what your faith says about human dignity, the brotherhood of man.

If you live in an area where greater "freedom" seems apparent—examine the situation in the light of your faith, for the fullest meanings of unselfishness and brotherhood.

You can help overcome the lack of understanding in our land . . . and possibly a chasm in your own heart. Worship this week . . . put your faith to work for a fuller understanding of yourself, for a fuller unity of spirit among all men.

Overfelt Director Of Oil Council

JEFFERSON CITY - Sam B. Overfelt, 35, is new executive director of the Missouri Oil Council. He succeeds D. Gary Spencer, who is going to Washington with the American Petroleum Institute.
Overfelt formerly was Gov. John M. Dalton's legal assistant. Later he was chief counsel of the State Insurance Division and recently has been a legislative representative for Missouri's railroads.
Overfelt formerly practiced law in Springfield and was president of the Missouri Young Democrats. He is national committeeman for the Young Democrats now.

At a Detroit factory a production employe appeared in the superintendent's office to demand a day off with pay--to make up for the coffee breaks he had missed while on vacation.

Senator Jennings Randolph to Speak at AGC Meeting

JEFFERSON CITY - Featured at the 39th Annual Meeting of the Associated General Contractors of Missouri will be an outline of state highway and federal construction in the state during 1965. In addition, the construction outlook after 1972 will be forecast by Sen. Jennings Randolph (D-W. Va.), chairman of the Senate subcommittee on roads.
Scheduled for Jan. 13 and 14 at the Hotel Muehlebach in Kansas City, the convention program will include a talk by Marvin J. Snider, chief engineer, Missouri State Highway Department, who will discuss Missouri's highway program for the coming year. On the same program, will be Lt. Col. C. R. Supplee, deputy district engineer, Kansas City District of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers; and Lt. Col. Harry B. Barke, deputy district engineer, St. Louis District of the Corps of Engineers. The two officers will outline the Corps program for Missouri for 1965.
Sen. Randolph, who is also a member of the Senate committee on public works, will speak on "Trends in Transportation After 1972," at 2:15 p.m., Jan. 14, in the Colonial Ballroom of the hotel. The year 1972 is the date when the present Interstate Highway Program expires.
Included on the convention program will be the presentation of the association's annual safety awards. In addition, the group's "E.C.L. Wagner Award" will be presented to two contractors who have compiled outstanding safety records during the last five years and who have made outstanding contributions to the cause of construction safety.
The names of the Wagner Award winners will be withheld until the presentation by E.C.L. Wagner, of Jefferson City.
The annual safety awards will be presented by R. P. Stephens, chairman of the Accident Prevention Committee of the Missouri AGC.
Among other activities at the annual meeting will be a special program on Workmen's Compensation and Unemployment Compensation featuring Seldon E. Brown, St. Louis, Director of Insurance and Workmen's Compensation, Associated Industries of Missouri; and E.E. Diemer, St. Louis, Director of Research of the Associated Industries.
Also included in the convention functions will be the installation of officers of the association, presentation of 25-year membership certificates to Clark Construction Co., St. Joseph, and the W. J. Menefee Construction Co., Sedalia.

White House Changes The Visit Hours

WASHINGTON - The White House has changed its regular visiting days for inaugural week.
Visitors will be admitted Monday, Jan. 18, but the White House will be closed on inaugural day, Jan. 20. Visitors ordinarily are not admitted on Monday.
The White House explained visitors would be admitted that Monday because of the large number of out of town people expected for inaugural ceremonies.

Looking Back Over The Years

50 YEARS AGO
January 8, 1915

40 YEARS AGO
January 8, 1925

The Bowman building on Center street is rapidly being put in order by Contractor Young, for the new picture show. Thos. Arnold, the manager and owner, hopes to be able to open the house to the public about January 20th. The building, when completed, will be equipped with 300 opera chairs to start with and more added if needed, have three exits and the latest in moving picture machines. Piano music will add to the picture and Miss Madge Davis, teacher of music in the Morehouse High School, will preside at the piano.

Mr. and Mrs. Loomis Mayfield entertained Sunday with a family dinner. Covers were laid for: Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Mayfield, Mr. and Mrs. James Klein, Mrs. J. E. Marshall, Mrs. C. D. Matthews, sr., Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Galeener and family, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Yount and son, Misses Mayme Marshall and Camille Klein.

Capt. Will L. Fisher, stationed at Schofield Barracks, Honolulu, has the thanks of the editor's family for a pound of coffee, six cans of perserves and one pound of candied pineapple sent for a Christmas gift. It took but 12 days for the package to reach us.

30 YEARS AGO
January 8, 1935

Mrs. Pernecie T. Lescher, a native of Southeast Missouri and a resident of Sikeston for 50 years, died at her home here early Friday morning.

A white oak bedroom suite, known to be 110 years old and thought to be much older, is now on display in a window of the Wolf House Furniture Co., on Front street.

The Illmo High School Mustangs won a double-header from the Sikeston Bulldogs, who played their first home game of the season Friday night. The Illmo boys defeated Sikeston 31 to 26 during a rally in the 1st few minutes of play, while the Illmo girls won 27 to 22 from the Sikeston girls, who were playing their first game this year.

Mrs. Buford Baber and Miss Burdeen Schroff honored Mrs. Tharon Stallings at a miscellaneous shower held at Mrs. Baber's home on Kendall street Saturday evening. Bridge prizes were won by Miss Ruth McCoy and Mrs. Jack Bowman.

20 YEARS AGO
January 8, 1945

Two small Negro children were burned to death Monday afternoon when fire of unexplained origin destroyed the small frame house in which they lived with their parents, Mary and Peter Hobbs, in Sunset addition.

First realization of the cost of the great German drive at Christmas-time came to Sikeston this week with announcement of the death of two Sikeston men. Both were killed on December 26, according to information received from the War Department by relatives here. Lt. James L. Kissack, husband of the former Miss Margaret Wilson, was killed in action in Germany. No details were given. Mrs. Wm. E. Turner was advised Sunday night of the death of her husband, Pfc. Turner, in Luxembourg on the 26th.

Lt. Vance Engram, who sustained serious injuries while fighting in Italy several weeks ago, has been transferred to the Army hospital at Salt Lake City, Utah, for treatment. His wife, who has been employed in the office of the International Shoe Factory here, plans to join him within the next several days.

Miss Georgene Sutton, who had been residing in California since last spring, is returning to Sikeston to reside.

PRAYER For Today From The Upper Room

"I will. . .that men pray everywhere, lifting up holy hands, without wrath and doubting. (I Timothy 2:8)

PRAYER: Our Father, teach us, we pray Thee, the power of prayer. May we learn that we can cast our burdens at the feet of Christ in prayer and receive strength sufficient to live the Christian life. In His name. Amen.

POETIC LICENSE

When French poet Pierre Emmanuel taught at Harvard summer school a few years ago, students attended his lectures in droves. The administration was dismayed, however, when Emmanuel left for Paris at the end of the session without submitting grades for his students. A cable was dispatched to him, and back came the poet's reply: "Give them all A's. I enjoyed the course."

Miss Robinett Is Appointed Aide To Symington

WASHINGTON - Miss Harriet Robnett, St. Louis attorney, has been named legislative assistant to Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo.

Miss Robnett has been law clerk to U.S. District Judge James H. Meredith of St. Louis since her graduation from Washington University Law School and admission to the Missouri bar in 1961.

Before studying law, Miss Robnett was an editor in the Associated Press bureau in Kansas City. A native of Columbia, Mo., she studied journalism and graduated from the University of Missouri.

While attending Washington U., she was a staff producer and director of TV programs for station KSD, St. Louis.

Earl G. Mackey, whose job she will take in Washington, returned to Missouri to enter private law practice at Cape Girardeau after two years with Symington.

Gov. Dalton Makes Several Appointments to State Jobs

Waldo, who has been the governor's legal assistant, will succeed Glenn D. Evans of Jefferson City in the $12,500 a year job. Evans will stay on as assistant counsel.

The governor also appointed: Mrs. Sallie Hailey of Arrow Rock judge of the first district of the Saline County Court. She is Democratic national committeewoman for Missouri and the outgoing director of the Department of Business and Administration.

Col. Joseph S. Withington of DeSoto, a retired Army officer, as presiding judge of the Jefferson County Court. He succeeds Herbert Moss, who was elected circuit judge in November.

Jack L. Duncan as prosecuting attorney of Iron County succeeding Marvin L. Dinger, who resigned.

William S. Morris of Kansas County public administrator. Morris, a leading supporter of Gov.-elect Warren E. Hearnes in Kansas City, has been filling out the term of the late Perrin D. McElroy who was re-elected in November but died the day after the election.

Lee C. Fine, 47, took over today as State Director of Parks, succeeding C. E. Dutch Wyatt of Poplar Bluff.

The State Park Board chose Fine Monday. Gov. John M. Dalton immediately reappointed Wyatt as Butler County superintendent of schools, the job he left six months ago to become park director. Wyatt has been ill recently with a blood clot.

Fine has been assistant forester in charge of fire control for the State Conservation Commission five years.

If you want a line on a man, ask somebody that works with him. ---Will Rogers

LEST I FORGET

A stalwart sentinel, whose mighty sword,
The age old steeple, seems to reach the sky,
Massive open doors, like arms, extend toward
Me, and bid me come. . . humbly, I comply.
To him on bended knee, I bare my heart,
I know He knows, but still I must confess,
Now once again the upward trail I start
And promise from wayward ways to digress.
So please, dear Lord, as oft you have before,
Set me aright, and take me by the hand,
Lead me more often through this widespread door.
That others, too, may know just where I stand.
I need Thee, Lord, no matter where I go,
Unworthy though I be, teach me to grow.

Bee Bacherig

An elevator at a government building in Washington, D. C., bears this sign: "Civil Defense Procedures for Elevator No. 1: Pick up wardens from all floors and take to third floor. Return to lobby. Note: In case of actual emergency, elevators will not operate."

Mark Beltaire

Voters in Stonington, Conn., went to the polls and elected Allen Abbott, Harry Chiappone and Robert Stillman street commissioners. But the victory was short-lived. At the same time the voters adopted a new borough charter abolishing the street commission.

TONGUE-TIED?

A wittier person there never was,
Than I, when I'm all alone;
Why is it then, around other people,
My tongue turns into stone?
The saucy quips, the brilliant quotes,
They fly when there's just me;
But when I want to show them off,
They all turn tail and flee.

REAL VALUE. . .an insurance policy can't be examined like a refrigerator or television set at the time of purchase. . .It does not become of real value to you until you need it. . .So, we suggest you ask your friends what kind of service they receive from their respective agencies before selecting your agency. . . Chances are you will have a friend that carries his insurance with this agency. . We feel sure that you will find that he is completely satisfied. . .So, if you want the very best insurance possible, plus service that is unequaled, give us a call.

Looking Back Over The Years

50 YEARS AGO
January 8, 1915

40 YEARS AGO
January 8, 1925

The Bowman building on Center street is rapidly being put in order by Contractor Young, for the new picture show. Thos. Arnold, the manager and owner, hopes to be able to open the house to the public about January 20th. The building, when completed, will be equipped with 300 opera chairs to start with and more added if needed, have three exits and the latest in moving picture machines. Piano music will add to the picture and Miss Madge Davis, teacher of music in the Morehouse High School, will preside at the piano.

Mr. and Mrs. Loomis Mayfield entertained Sunday with a family dinner. Covers were laid for: Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Mayfield, Mr. and Mrs. James Klein, Mrs. J. E. Marshall, Mrs. C. D. Matthews, sr., Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Galeener and family, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Yount and son, Misses Mayme Marshall and Camille Klein.

Capt. Will L. Fisher, stationed at Schofield Barracks, Honolulu, has the thanks of the editor's family for a pound of coffee, six cans of perserves and one pound of candied pineapple sent for a Christmas gift. It took but 12 days for the package to reach us.

A. F. Lindsay left Sunday for Jefferson City, to be sworn in and represent this district in the House of Representatives.

30 YEARS AGO
January 8, 1935

Mrs. Pernecie T. Lescher, a native of Southeast Missouri and a resident of Sikeston for 50 years, died at her home here early Friday morning.

A white oak bedroom suite, known to be 110 years old and thought to be much older, is now on display in a window of the Wolf House Furniture Co., on Front street.

The Illmo High School Mustangs won a double-header from the Sikeston Bulldogs, who played their first home game of the season Friday night. The Illmo boys defeated Sikeston 31 to 26 during a rally in the 1st few minutes of play, while the Illmo girls won 27 to 22 from the Sikeston girls, who were playing their first game this year.

Mrs. Buford Baber and Miss Burdeen Schroff honored Mrs. Tharon Stallings at a miscellaneous shower held at Mrs. Baber's home on Kendall street Saturday evening. Bridge prizes were won by Miss Ruth McCoy and Mrs. Jack Bowman.

20 YEARS AGO
January 8, 1945

Two small Negro children were burned to death Monday afternoon when fire of unexplained origin destroyed the small frame house in which they lived with their parents, Mary and Peter Hobbs, in Sunset addition.

First realization of the cost of the great German drive at Christmas-time came to Sikeston this week with announcement of the death of two Sikeston men. Both were killed on December 26, according to information received from the War Department by relatives here. Lt. James L. Kissack, husband of the former Miss Margaret Wilson, was killed in action in Germany. No details were given. Mrs. Wm. E. Turner was advised Sunday night of the death of her husband, Pfc. Turner, in Luxembourg on the 26th.

Lt. Vance Engram, who sustained serious injuries while fighting in Italy several weeks ago, has been transferred to the Army hospital at Salt Lake City, Utah, for treatment. His wife, who has been employed in the office of the International Shoe Factory here, plans to join him within the next several days.

Miss Georgene Sutton, who had been residing in California since last spring, is returning to Sikeston to reside.

PRAYER For Today From The Upper Room

"I will. . .that men pray everywhere, lifting up holy hands, without wrath and doubting. (I Timothy 2:8)

PRAYER: Our Father, teach us, we pray Thee, the power of prayer. May we learn that we can cast our burdens at the feet of Christ in prayer and receive strength sufficient to live the Christian life. In His name. Amen.

POETIC LICENSE

When French poet Pierre Emmanuel taught at Harvard summer school a few years ago, students attended his lectures in droves. The administration was dismayed, however, when Emmanuel left for Paris at the end of the session without submitting grades for his students. A cable was dispatched to him, and back came the poet's reply: "Give them all A's. I enjoyed the course."

Miss Robinett Is Appointed Aide To Symington

WASHINGTON - Miss Harriet Robnett, St. Louis attorney, has been named legislative assistant to Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo.

Miss Robnett has been law clerk to U.S. District Judge James H. Meredith of St. Louis since her graduation from Washington University Law School and admission to the Missouri bar in 1961.

Before studying law, Miss Robnett was an editor in the Associated Press bureau in Kansas City. A native of Columbia, Mo., she studied journalism and graduated from the University of Missouri.

While attending Washington U., she was a staff producer and director of TV programs for station KSD, St. Louis.

Earl G. Mackey, whose job she will take in Washington, returned to Missouri to enter private law practice at Cape Girardeau after two years with Symington.

Gov. Dalton Makes Several Appointments to State Jobs

Waldo, who has been the governor's legal assistant, will succeed Glenn D. Evans of Jefferson City in the $12,500 a year job. Evans will stay on as assistant counsel.

The governor also appointed: Mrs. Sallie Hailey of Arrow Rock judge of the first district of the Saline County Court. She is Democratic national committeewoman for Missouri and the outgoing director of the Department of Business and Administration.

Col. Joseph S. Withington of DeSoto, a retired Army officer, as presiding judge of the Jefferson County Court. He succeeds Herbert Moss, who was elected circuit judge in November.

Jack L. Duncan as prosecuting attorney of Iron County succeeding Marvin L. Dinger, who resigned.

William S. Morris of Kansas County public administrator. Morris, a leading supporter of Gov.-elect Warren E. Hearnes in Kansas City, has been filling out the term of the late Perrin D. McElroy who was re-elected in November but died the day after the election.

Lee C. Fine, 47, took over today as State Director of Parks, succeeding C. E. Dutch Wyatt of Poplar Bluff.

The State Park Board chose Fine Monday. Gov. John M. Dalton immediately reappointed Wyatt as Butler County superintendent of schools, the job he left six months ago to become park director. Wyatt has been ill recently with a blood clot.

Fine has been assistant forester in charge of fire control for the State Conservation Commission five years.

LEST I FORGET

A stalwart sentinel, whose mighty sword,
The age old steeple, seems to reach the sky,
Massive open doors, like arms, extend toward
Me, and bid me come. . . humbly, I comply.
To him on bended knee, I bare my heart,
I know He knows, but still I must confess,
Now once again the upward trail I start
And promise from wayward ways to digress.
So please, dear Lord, as oft you have before,
Set me aright, and take me by the hand,
Lead me more often through this widespread door.
That others, too, may know just where I stand.
I need Thee, Lord, no matter where I go,
Unworthy though I be, teach me to grow.

Bee Bacherig

An elevator at a government building in Washington, D. C., bears this sign: "Civil Defense Procedures for Elevator No. 1: Pick up wardens from all floors and take to third floor. Return to lobby. Note: In case of actual emergency, elevators will not operate."

Mark Beltaire

Voters in Stonington, Conn., went to the polls and elected Allen Abbott, Harry Chiappone and Robert Stillman street commissioners. But the victory was short-lived. At the same time the voters adopted a new borough charter abolishing the street commission.

TONGUE-TIED?

A wittier person there never was,
Than I, when I'm all alone;
Why is it then, around other people,
My tongue turns into stone?
The saucy quips, the brilliant quotes,
They fly when there's just me;
But when I want to show them off,
They all turn tail and flee.

The North American form of the falcon is often called the duck hawk. When falconry was the sport of kings, the peregrine was the most popular falcon. A trained bird, when released, normally climbs for altitude with swift wingbeats, then drops with closed wings on flying waterfowl and other birds. Striking with clenched talons, it kills by impact. It can attain a speed of 180 miles per hour in its power dive.

ANN LANDERS
Answers your problems

Dear Ann Landers: My wife took a few lessons in voice before we were married (18 years ago). The truth is she can't carry a note with a co-singer.

Whenever we go to a party Isobel gets a few beers and wants to give a recital. What Isobel does best is the hog-calling bit. She was raised near Ida Grove, Iowa, and won the county hog-calling championship for three straight years. When the party gets going good everyone hollers, "Call the hogs, Isobel," but she wants to sing opera. Nobody wants opera; they want her specialty. Isobel says it isn't dignified.

Please tell her to be a sport. She thinks you're great and she'll listen to you. --BUCK

Dear Buck: Since I'm an Iowa girl myself I can tell you that a good hog-caller can be proud. That "Soo-eeey-- sooey sooey" bit is an art. C'mon, Isobel, give the folks what they want.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been laughing my head off over your cornball column for years. Certainly you've read enough from the miserable marrieds of America to know by this time that marriage is a great little institution -- but not for men.

Why not level with John and Jane Q. Public and tell them the way it is? Every married man I know has that hang-dog look on his face. You can see that the joy of living has been beaten out of him.

The male animal is a roamer by nature--happier when he is unencumbered. And this is the way he was meant to live.

The female, however, needs marriage. She must have a permanent home. She needs a family to give expression to her maternal instincts. It is also better for the economics of the country if women marry because marriage and family responsibilities keep women at home--for a few years at least. Too many females are out in the business world competing with males which creates all sorts of problems.

Since you claim to be a realist, Ann, why don't you state the facts? --MALE MAIL

Dear Mail: So men should be single and women should be married? And just who are women supposed to marry? Each other?

When you get the formula worked out, send it on. It should make fascinating reading.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy who is 13 and already writing to Ann Landers for advice. I didn't think I would need you for a few more years but here I am.

My four-year-old sister is making a wreck out of me. Whenever I want to see a certain TV program Jeanette throws herself down on the floor, and kicks and screams until she gets her way.

Twice last week I had to take Jeanette with me on Saturday afternoon when I went to a friend's house to play table tennis. Today I told my mother I'd rather not go than take my little sister. Jeanette kicked up such a fuss my mother said, "You'll go and take her with you. I can't stand the noise. It's bad for my high blood pressure.

Is this fair? What can I do? -- LIKE TRAPPED

Dear Like: You should not have to take your little sister with you because your mother can't stand to have her at home. When a four-year-old rules the roost by kicking and screaming -- look out. The noises Jeanette is making now are whispers compared to what will come later.

Your mother needs some outside help. She has a spoiled four - year - old on her hands and allowing kids to behave this way is unfair. Such kids grow up thoroughly despised.

Do you lean on cigarettes as a social crutch? You may regret it later. Send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teenage Smoking," enclosing with your request 10¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Setback for Plan to Orbit 3 Astronauts

By HAROLD R. WILLIAMS

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The U.S. plan to orbit three astronauts in an Apollo moon spacecraft in 1966 suffered its first setback today with announcement of major schedule changes.

Also caught in the revisions was the third Saturn manned mission, which was replaced by an unmanned earth orbital test of the lunar excursion module — LEM — which will carry astronauts to the moon's surface.

"Instead of making the launch be later in 1966."

Because of the closeness of the schedule, however, problems could send the mission into 1967, observers pointed out.

Original planning called for two unmanned sub-orbital flights of the powerful Saturn 1B rocket. The third, assuming no major setbacks occurred on the previous two, was to be flown by three astronauts.

Lee said the third flight now was scheduled to be a test of the second-stage booster, called the Saturn 4B, and its propellant tanks, which hold liquid hydrogen and oxygen.

To save weight, the Apollo spacecraft will not be used — only a nose cone, Lee said.

The tanks carry 223,500 pounds of fuel and will be filled. In earth orbital trips using the three-stage Apollo spacecraft, the tanks will be only partly filled, Lee said, to reduce weight.

The Saturn 4B will be the third stage on the mighty Saturn 5 rocket and will hurl itself and the Apollo spacecraft into earth orbit.

After four and one-half hours circling the earth, the Saturn 4B's engine will be started and its 200,000 pounds of thrust will fling the spacecraft toward the moon.

"We need to know how the fuel acts in a weightless condition," Lee said. "The only way we can do that is to send it into space."

The Saturn 1 family of rockets has been one of the brighter spots in the U.S. space picture. The 1.5 million-pound thrust rocket has been fired seven times without mishap. The Saturn 1B is an advanced and more powerful model.

Lee said the unmanned earth orbital test of the LEM replacing the third manned mission was scheduled for 1967.

Hold Former Air Force Veteran on Spying Charges

NEW YORK AP -- Robert Glenn Thompson, 29, a husky Air Force veteran, faces a possible death sentence on charges that he sold military secrets to the Soviet Union with the aid of three Russians.

One of the Russians, named as a co - conspirator in the three - count federal indictment Thursday, was ordered expelled from the country by the State Department. He is Boris V. Karpovich, a counselor in the Soviet Embassy in Washington.

Thompson pleaded innocent at his arraignment on charges that he furnished military data to Soviet agents from 1957-1963 and received payments totaling $1,700. U. S. Atty. Joseph E. Hoey commented that payments listed in the indictment were only samples and that there were many more.

Thompson was released in $15,000 bail by U.S. Dist. Judge Walter Bruchhausen in Brooklyn. No trial date was set.

The spy operations were said to have occurred in East and West Berlin and later on Long Island where Thompson lives, and in New York, Detroit, Washington and Great Falls, Mont.

Thompson, a native of Detroit, operates a service station on Long Island, where he also runs an independent fuel oil business. He joined the Air Force in 1952, and served in West Berlin, Labrador and several bases in the United States before his discharge in 1958.

Says State Got $157,477,216. in Revenue in 1964

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Missouri's taxes and fees produced $157,477,216 in general revenue funds during the first six months of the fiscal year, Comptroller Charles D. Trigg said Thursday in a report to Gov. John M. Dalton.

The major portion of the increase lay in the sales-use tax collections which increased from $70,160,768 to $105,688,572. Slight drops were indicated in beer and inheritance tax collections.

Trigg said the cash balance as of the close of business Dec. 31 was $38,677,951, plus $1,941,640 in the process of collection.

The park is destined to continue to grow in popularity, and received its first big boost with Charles Boutin on the state park board. Now that a member from New Madrid county, Lee C. Fine, has been added to the board, the park can expect additional growth.

Unfortunately, due to the low river stage and a severe summer drouth, the lake almost went dry during the past year. This condition has now been corrected. Another well was dug 120 feet deep, and has again raised the lake level to within three feet of its original depth. With the hope of adding a larger pump, the well would be able to supply the lake with as much as 500 gallons per minute, and assure the lake being full at all times.

A new home for the superintendent and his family was built in 1959, and other buildings added, as well as picnic benches and a shelter house. The lake has been stocked with thousands of game fish, to make it a fishing paradise.

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Missouri's taxes and fees produced $157,477,216 in general revenue funds during the first six months of the fiscal year, Comptroller Charles D. Trigg said Thursday in a report to Gov. John M. Dalton.

The major portion of the increase lay in the sales-use tax collections which increased from $70,160,768 to $105,688,572. Slight drops were indicated in beer and inheritance tax collections.

Trigg said the cash balance as of the close of business Dec. 31 was $38,677,951, plus $1,941,640 in the process of collection.

SEN. JACK CURTIS SENATE MINORITY LEADER

The park is destined to continue to grow in popularity, and received its first big boost with Charles Boutin on the state park board. Now that a member from New Madrid county, Lee C. Fine, has been added to the board, the park can expect additional growth.

Unfortunately, due to the low river stage and a severe summer drouth, the lake almost went dry during the past year. This condition has now been corrected. Another well was dug 120 feet deep, and has again raised the lake level to within three feet of its original depth. With the hope of adding a larger pump, the well would be able to supply the lake with as much as 500 gallons per minute, and assure the lake being full at all times.

A new home for the superintendent and his family was built in 1959, and other buildings added, as well as picnic benches and a shelter house. The lake has been stocked with thousands of game fish, to make it a fishing paradise.
